Many Alumni-ae Attend Annual Reunion Week-end

WITH the classes in attendance spanning fifty years, from 1905 to 1955, the Alumni Luncheon on June 11th enjoyed one of the largest crowds in the history of the affair. About 1400 Alumni-ae, parents of the members of the Class of 1955 and friends enjoyed the Barbecue which was a high point of the Alumni Week-End.

Major points highlighting the program of the Alumni Luncheon in the Memorial Field House were: The awarding of plaques for meritorious service by Alumni and Alumnae to the College; announcement of newly-elected Alumni-ae officers; presentation of the LaFlamme and McCullough Cups; and the announcement of the great success of the Alumni Fund.

Marian G. Cruikshank, '30, was elected Alumnae Vice President and Paula G. Knight, '45, was chosen Alumnae Delegate-at-Large.

In recognition of meritorious service to Middlebury, traditional pewter plaques were presented to Dr. Lucretius H. Ross, '90, Ivan D. Hagar, '09, and Mrs. Joseph K. Milliken, '01. Mrs. Milliken was the recipient of the first plaque award to an Alumna.

Richard C. Hubbard, '36, retiring National Alumni president, presented the awards to Dr. Ross and Mr. Hagar. He cited these two outstanding Middlebury men as follows:

Lucretius Henry Ross, Class of 1890, —Doctor, Educator and Public Servant— You have served your town, Bennington, as well as the State of Vermont, and Middlebury College all of your life. As a very loyal alumnus and as a former trustee of Middlebury College, as Secretary of your class and as Class Alumni Fund Chairman, you have always been actively interested in your College and its welfare. I am honored to present this plaque to you from the Associated Alumni for these 65 years of meritorious service to your Alma Mater.

Ivan D. Hagar, Class of 1909,—Distinguished Chemist and Citizen of Middlebury. Since your return to this community you have helped the Town and the College immeasurably whenever called upon. In service to your class as Secretary and Fund Chairman, to this College as State Fund Chairman and as a member of several Alumni committees and to your fraternity as President of the Alumni Chapter of Kappa Delta Rho, you have exhibited wisdom, leadership and enthusiasm which have strengthened the bonds of the Alumni and the College. I am pleased to present this plaque to you from the Associated Alumni for meritorious service to your Alma Mater.

Miss Dorothea E. Higgins, '30, National Alumnae president, made the plaque presentation to Mrs. Milliken. She noted in her remarks that it was significant that the first Alumnae award should go to Mrs. Milliken and cited this outstanding Alumna as follows:

Gertrude Cornish Milliken, Class of 1901, was awarded an honorary A. M. in 1927 and in 1947 was given an honorary doctorate by the College. Mrs. Milliken founded the House-in-the-Pines School for Girls in Norton, Mass. in 1911 and served as its head until 1944. She is now its Principal-emerita. Mrs. Milliken has always been especially interested and active in the Educational field. She has supported Middlebury in every way. She has not only given in a material way to better Middlebury, but has given her time and her good judgment whenever it was needed. Her knowledge and experience made her an outstanding member of the Advisory Board of the Women's College of Middlebury of which she has served as head. Mrs. Milliken was one of the two first women trustees to be elected to the Board of Trustees in 1948 and is still serving faithfully and is an active member. As such a gracious and highly respected member of our Middlebury family, Mrs. Milliken is our natural choice as the first woman to receive this plaque for outstanding service to her Alma Mater.

The McCullough Reunion Cup, awarded to the class having the greatest percentage of its living members present, was won by the Class of 1905 with 54 percent of its members present. The presentation of the Cup was made by Egbert C. Hadley, '10, chairman of the College Board of Trustees. Samuel L. Abbott, '05, accepted the Cup for his class.

Five classes share the LaFlamme Cup for 100 percent participation in the Alumni Fund. Walter E. Brooker, '37, made the award to the men of 1882-1890, 1902, 1903, and 1906, and the women of 1906.

Mr. Brooker informed the large attendance at the Alumni Luncheon that 57 percent of the graduates had donated to the Alumni Fund as of June 11 for a total of $48,121.92. Total gifts from all sources to the Fund and the Development Program for 1954-1955 totaled $191,378.03 (See story on Fund on Page 9).

Alumni of 50 years or more were seated at special tables in front of the platform at the Alumni Luncheon at which time they were presented their 50-year pins. Those unable to attend the Luncheon received their pins through the mail. Forty-six Alumnae were present to accept their pins. That evening a Jubilee Dinner was held at the Middlebury Inn with Dr. Stephen A. Freeman, vice president of the College, as principal speaker.

The Alumnae and Alumni Councils met in the morning prior to the Alumni Luncheon.

The Alumnae Association open meeting broke attendance records by having over sixty-five women present. Alumnae Secretary Alice N. Perine, '47, reports that the two main points of the meeting, besides an interesting talk by Dean Elizabeth Kelly, were a discussion of the Dean Eleanor S. Ross Scholarship Fund and a possibility of studying Faculty salaries at Middlebury College. It was decided to keep the campaign for the Ross Fund on a personal basis so as not to compete with the Alumni Fund. Between the money raised so far and that available in the Association Treasury, $2000 will be reached by Fall, if approved by the Council.

In the discussion of Faculty salaries at Middlebury, the group decided that they would like to have more facts on a comparative basis with other colleges before making any recommendations. However, it was decided to bring to the attention of those in charge, the interest and concern of the Alumnae over this matter and to point out the fact that they are interested in having this item be one of the most important parts of the Development Program.

Highlights of the meeting of the Alumni Council were: 1. report of the Alumni Fund; 2. Secretary's Report; 3. address by the Faculty Representative.

Walter E. Brooker, '37, National Alumni Fund Chairman reported that "for the first time since the Fund was started in 1949 an outstanding job has been done during the past year by Middlebury Alumni and Alumnae. Although the figures are not complete, since the Fund doesn't close until June 30th, Alumni participation stands at 56.7% and it is anticipated that this rise to 58% by the end of the month. Alumni, parents, and friends had contributed $48,121.92 by June 3rd, and again it was expected that this figure would very nearly reach the $50,000 goal. Mr. Brooker pointed out that this record of participation guarantees Middlebury a place on the Honor Roll of the American Alumni Council, a good sales point when talking to Foundations and Industries.

"A large measure of the success of the 1954-55 Drive," he said, "results from the fact that for the first time Middlebury put into operation a system of personal solicitation in all major areas where alumni are living. This required a lot of hard work by Area Chairmen and Fund workers but certainly was worthwhile." He also mentioned the fact that a number of graduates participated in the General Electric program which matches dollar for dollar the gifts of G.E. employees to their college funds.

Mr. Brooker then announced the recommendations made by the Alumni Fund Executive Committee for the coming year. The Committee suggested the names of Donald Frederickson, '25, and Mrs. Margaret Harworth Shuttleworth, '29, as National Chairmen for 1955-56. The amount to be raised was set at $55,000, of which $25,000 is to be allocated to scholarships, and $30,000 to the Development Fund.

In closing he expressed his appreciation to the Class Agents, the Area Chairmen, and all the workers for the help they have given in making the Drive such a success.

Stanley V. Wright, '17, Alumni Secretary was unable to be present due to illness. His report was read by Earl A. Samson, '26, Vice President and Alumni Trustee-elect. The report praised the work of "over 300 Alumni and Alumnae throughout the country who helped in the solicitations." The report also pointed out the success of the Alumni Dinners and the New York Concert by the College Choir, held in April instead of the usual dinner. "The concert was a great success and raised more than $500. for the Playhouse Fund," stated the report.

Professor John T. Andrews speaking before the Council as Faculty Representative, praised the development of the physical plant of the College during the "last dozen or fifteen years." He pointed out the need of maintaining the educational progress of the College in step with the development of the physical side. In this connection he spoke on the following three points:

1. Suggested that a "very fundamental kind of examination of our whole curricular program should be undertaken"; 2. Emphasized the need of a proper ratio of students and faculty stating that "where faculty is overloaded you cannot expect as great a teaching performance"; 3. Pointed out the need of increased faculty salaries.

On the point of faculty salaries he said, in part, "It is not a good thing for a teacher to ask for more money, and faculty salaries is a question about which you have heard a lot over a period of time. We all recognize that people who go into the teaching profession do not go into it to make money. They are dedicated to something else. . . . When the salaries the teachers receive are not sufficient to enable them to enjoy a decent standard of living, what they are compelled to do in fact by the exigencies of the situation in which they find themselves is to devote their extra and excess energies and extra time in one way or another to increasing their income, so that the College is not in a position to require them or demand or even request them to devote their full time to their teaching and their study and their research. This is a compelling argument for increasing salaries at Middlebury."

Following the report of the Faculty Representative it was the feeling of the Council members present that the Alumni Council should work towards a successful solution of the three main points of Professor Andrews' address. And that the Alumni must increase their donations in order to aid the College to carry through this program.

The Council passed a motion that a representative of the Alumni Council request the Board of Trustees of the College for a specific description of the plans for the faculty, incorporating the three points contained in the Faculty Representative's report, "and report back to the Council at the next meeting in October." Professor Charles J. Lyon, '18, Alumni Trustee and a member of the Dartmouth faculty was appointed the representative of the Alumni Council.

Members of the Council voted unanimously to accept the recommendation of the Executive Committee of the Alumni Fund to have Donald Fredrickson, '25, serve as National Fund Chairman for the coming year. (The Alumnae Council at its meeting made Mrs. James Shuttleworth, '29, National Chairman to work with him.) The Council also voted that the goal of the Alumni Fund for next year be $55,000, with $25,000 to be given for scholarships, and $30,000 for the Development Fund.

Stanley V. Wright, '17, was re-elected Alumni Secretary for the coming year.

There was considerable discussion on the suggestion made by Sanford Young, '44, concerning the possibility of the College adopting the type of reunion plan used by many colleges (the Robinson or Dix plan) whereby reunions are held by three-class groups. The motion was made and carried that the Alumni Office explore from all angles the possibilities of adopting the plan and report to the Alumni Council in October.

1955 Alumni Fund Drive Sets High Record of Participation

BULLETIN: As the NEWS LETTER goes to press all sources of contributions to the College during the past year, both from the Development Program and Alumni Fund, total $195,052.80. The first year of the Development Program ends in October.

With gifts pouring into the Alumni Fund Office at an unprecedented rate during the past College Year, Walter E. Brooker, '37, and Mrs. Mildred Becker Bennett, '41, Alumni Fund chairmen report that the Annual Giving total has reached a record breaking high this year. As of June 30, the Fund total for the 1954-1955 year showed a 58.4 percentage figure of participation by Alumni and Alumnae. Very few colleges in the country can boast of such a record of participation. A year ago the Fund's percentage figure was 32.4.

The spectacular increase in participation is a tribute to the thoroughness of the Class Agents and Area Chairmen active in the campaign. A total of 1195 more Alumni-ae contributed to the Fund this year in comparison to last year.

The Fund at the close of the official college year on June 30 stood at $50,669.78 in comparison to $25,227.15 a year ago. Of the amount received this year $42,537.53 was contributed by Alumni-ae and $6,942.75 by parents, while friends of the College donated $1,189.50.

Growth of the Annual Giving Alumni Fund during recent years has become a source of great pride for Alumni and Alumnae as it has maintained a steady and encouraging growth since 1950. That year the Fund raised $16,185.05. Starting at that point the Alumni Fund began its rise. In 1951, $17,263.96 was contributed; In 1952 donors gave $19,808.29; In 1953, the Fund realized $22,034.25; Last year the Annual Giving total reached $26,081.65.

Mr. Brooker as Chairman of the Alumni Fund and Mrs. Bennett as Co-chairman, deserve the warmest note of appreciation for the excellent work they have done in the interest of the Fund during the past three years. Both Mr. Brooker and Mrs. Bennett are retiring from their Fund posts this year. Their positions as Fund leaders will be very ably taken by Donald Frederickson, '25, and Mrs. Margaret Harworth Shuttleworth, '29. The goal of next year's Fund is $55,000.00.

Alumnae Club contributions to the College amounted to $1,760.00 for the 1954-1955 academic year.

Middlebury Honors Mrs. Gertrude Craig

The Middlebury College Board of Trustees have passed a resolution praising Mrs. Gertrude B. Craig for her faithful and conscientious service to the College. Mrs. Craig recently retired after 13 years as superintendent of dormitories.

A native of upstate New York, Mrs. Craig taught school for several years before coming to Vermont in 1937. Four years later she joined the staff of Middlebury College and a year later was named superintendent of dormitories.

Mrs. Craig has two sons, William, '37, who is now Dean of Students at Kansas State University, and James, Editor of the monthly magazine, American Forests. William Craig captained Middlebury's undefeated football team in 1936.

This fall, Mrs. Craig will take up duties as housemother at the Atwater House, residence of Middlebury College's newly-organized Atwater Club.

N. E. Mathematics Teachers To Meet At Middlebury

The seventh annual institute of the Association of Teachers of Mathematics in New England will be held on the Middlebury campus, August 18-25.

The institute is a study group conducted each summer by the association for teachers of mathematics at both the secondary school and college levels. Members participate in discussion and panel groups; several speakers have also been engaged for the general sessions. Discussion groups and general meetings are held each day of the institute's session.

John G. Bowker, Dean of the Middlebury faculty and Baldwin Professor of Mathematics, heads the general committee.

Among the speakers will be Dr. A. John Holden, Vermont commissioner of education; Dr. Morris Kline, New York University mathematics professor; Dr. William W. Rankin, Duke University professor emeritus, and Elmer B. Mode, Boston University mathematics professor.

Professor Duane L. Robinson, '03, and Mrs. Robinson celebrated their golden wedding anniversary recently in Middlebury. The Robinsons came to Middlebury in 1906 when Professor Robinson joined the Modern Language Department of the College.

In 1921 he gave up teaching and assumed the duties of assistant to President Paul D. Moody and secretary of the faculty, a position he held until 1928 when he left Middlebury to become associated with the Taft School in Watertown, Conn.

Returning to Middlebury in 1945 he edited the College's General Catalog and since finishing this task has been associated with the Admissions Department. Many parents and students have received their first glimpse of the campus with Professor Robinson as their very well informed guide.

Dr. Stephen A. Freeman, Vice President of the College wrote the following tribute on the occasion of Professor Robinson's 50th wedding anniversary.

"Few men living know more about Middlebury College, past and present, than Professor Duane Robinson. Graduating from the College in 1903, he has taught French, Latin and mathematics here; and has served in the difficult and demanding position of Secretary of the Faculty. As editor of the monumental Sesquicentennial Catalog, he organized all available knowledge about our alumni body up to 1950, a truly gigantic task. As the genial guide of visitors and prospective freshmen around the campus, he is already making a distinct impression on future generations of college students. In all these duties and occupations, he has demonstrated a deep and fervent love of the College, a rare combination of the qualities of a scholar and administrator, and has mellowed it all by a delightful sense of humor. It has been a privilege for me to work with him as a colleague, to succeed him in the French Department, and indeed to occupy his home on Weybridge Street for three years. Middlebury College has rarely been served so thoroughly and so loyally, in so many different ways, as by Professor Duane Robinson. We wish him and Mrs. Robinson many more happy years together."

Williams Scheduled As Homecoming Game

Alumni will return to the campus on October 8th for Homecoming and the football game with Williams at Porter Field.

It will be Labor Day in the full sense of the word at Middlebury this September when Coach Duke Nelson greets more than 30 candidates to start preparations for the 1955 football season.

Finding men to fill the positions of the 16 lettermen lost through graduation will pose the main problem for Coach Nelson and his staff in the days until the opening game with Wesleyan on Sept. 24.

Graduation took almost all the starting line, as well as three first-string backs. Included among the backs was Sonny Dennis, the team's leading scorer last season and one of Middlebury's all-time great athletes, now under contract to the Chicago Cardinals.

Inexperience will be one of the biggest obstacles for Coach Nelson and his staff to overcome. Only four seniors are listed among the candidates slated to report, eight more are juniors, while the rest are sophomores, most of whom saw little or no action during last year's campaign.

A year ago the coaching staff decried the lack of experience, but a sophomore-studded squad went on to compile a 4-2-1 mark, the best since 1949. Maybe history will repeat.

The Schedule: Sept. 24, at Wesleyan; Oct. 1, at Colby; Oct. 8, Williams (HOMECOMING); Oct. 15, Bates; Oct. 22, at R.P.I.; Oct. 29, at Norwich; Nov. 5, Vermont.

NOTICE! ALUMNI

World War II terms papers in the course in Political Science 20 (International Politics) have accumulated until now we have over a thousand. It has been the policy to give them back to the seniors when they graduate. The reason is obvious. We shall be glad to send them back to any of our former students who wish to receive them again and shall be glad to do so if you send to me at Munroe 7, Middlebury College, a self-addressed stamped envelope with about 25c postage affixed.

FACULTY

By Dr. Paul A. Cubeta, Assistant Professor of English

As a faculty adviser for freshman men the last few years, I, like many of my colleagues, have become increasingly aware of the social plight of the Middlebury man who does not join a fraternity. Labelled with the less than happy epithet "neutral," the independent has been left to shift for himself socially. Unless he has a car, an apartment downtown, or social privileges at a fraternity—none of them altogether satisfactory substitutes—his opportunities for a social life have been virtually non-existent. This problem of morale has been a serious one for both the Men's and Women's Colleges because last year there were over one hundred men not in a fraternity.

The President and Trustees of the College have moved forthrightly to solve the problem by recognizing the newly formed Jeremiah Atwater Club and turning over Weybridge House to it. This Club, to which about half of the independents already belong, has been organized, according to its constitution, "to provide a non-secret organization without national affiliation which will help to create total social opportunity for all members of the men's college regardless of race, color, creed, or economic status." Any male student of Middlebury College not a member of a Middlebury fraternity may become a member of the Club. At the conclusion of the fraternity rushing period this fall the Club will extend bids to the entire freshman class of the men's college. Membership in the Atwater Club is voluntary and would not prevent a man's joining a fraternity at any time. And thus in a very real sense total social opportunity will be achieved for the first time on the men's campus.

This new College policy has been put forth as an alternative to total rushing, a goal this year achieved at Amherst

EDITOR'S NOTE: Professor John G. Bowker, Dean of the Faculty has thoughtfully placed the Faculty Page of this issue at the disposal of Dr. Paul A. Cubeta, Assistant Professor of English, for the purpose of informing Alumni of the founding the Jeremiah Atwater Club at Middlebury. Dr. Cubeta was one of the founders of the Atwater Club and is now its faculty adviser.

The Jeremiah Atwater House at the corner of College and Weybridge Streets which will open with the start of the new College year in September.

and one toward which Williams is working. Total rushing at Middlebury seems at the moment to be a less feasible solution because the ten fraternities on campus do not have the physical capacity to accommodate the entire Men's College. Moreover, total rushing assumes that belonging to a fraternity is the social aim of every undergraduate. But there are men on campus who have no desire to belong to a fraternity or who cannot afford such a commitment for economic reasons. With educational costs rising yearly this last is increasingly becoming a mode of discrimination as pernicious as any unwritten "gentlemen's agreement."

The Trustees have recognized the fact that token moral approval of the Atwater Club alone would not insure its success. By providing the group with housing facilities, they have given the independents a physical advantage which previous organizations similar in nature have not had and without which have soon succumbed. The Atwater House is being made available to the Club beginning with the academic year 1955-56. The quarters in the Atwater House, which will provide accommodations for twenty upperclass members, will be an integral part of the dormitory system under the supervision of the Director of Men's Residences. The quarters furnished will be on a basis equivalent to those offered in other dormitories; maid and janitor service, for example, will be provided. There will also be two lounges and a kitchenette. The house will thus offer a modest place for study and recreation for non-fraternity men. The Club is most fortunate in being able to acquire the services of Mrs. Gertrude B. Craig, former Supervisor of Dormitories, who will serve as house mother and make her residence at Atwater House. Because the house does not have dining facilities, Atwater members have been given exclusive use of the dining hall in lower Gifford; freshman members, however, will continue to eat in upper Gifford with their class.

It has been gratifying to observe the coöperation and assistance of the College Administration in establishing the Atwater Club. To President Stratton and the Board of Trustees and to the Deans must go much of the credit for the initial success in providing this opportunity for a sense of community for all Middlebury's undergraduate men. But the Atwater Club faces a severer test during the coming year when it must establish itself in the College community on its own merits. There are bound at first to be fears and suspicions among some undergraduates that the Atwater Club is attempting to undermine the fraternity system at Middlebury. This is far from true. The Atwater Club is not competing with the fraternities. Although it will invite all non-fraternity men to join next fall, it will not participate in the formal rushing program of the Inter-fraternity Council, [Continued on page 26]

W. Storrs Lee Resigns Dean of Men Position

The NEWS LETTER feels that it is a wise policy to keep Alumni informed of College news and developments and to furnish information so as to dispell possible rumors or misinformation. Such a case in point took place recently on the campus when W. Storrs Lee resigned as Dean of Men. The College News Bureau was informed of the resignation and immediately prepared a routine news release for distribution. The release was so timed as to allow the news of the resignation to be sent to members of the faculty and staff before appearing in the press.

The day prior to the release of the College's news story a person not a member of the official College family called the resignation and other pieces of misinformation to the attention of the News Editor of WCAX, radio-television station in Burlington. The College despite its desire not to place on the air and in the press the fact that Mr. Lee's resignation had been requested, then had no other course of action but to state the facts. This story, fortunately, was limited to Vermont.

In making known to NEWS LETTER readers the reason for requesting Mr. Lee's resignation, the Board of Trustees stated that it "regretted the need for such action but a statement must be made because of certain mis-statements which have been circulating at the hands of others." The Trustee statement then went on to state: "Because of the continuing lack of hearty cooperation by Mr.

Lee in various areas of Middlebury College activities, the Board of Trustees believes it to be in the best long range interest of the College to request Mr. Lee's resignation as Dean of Men."

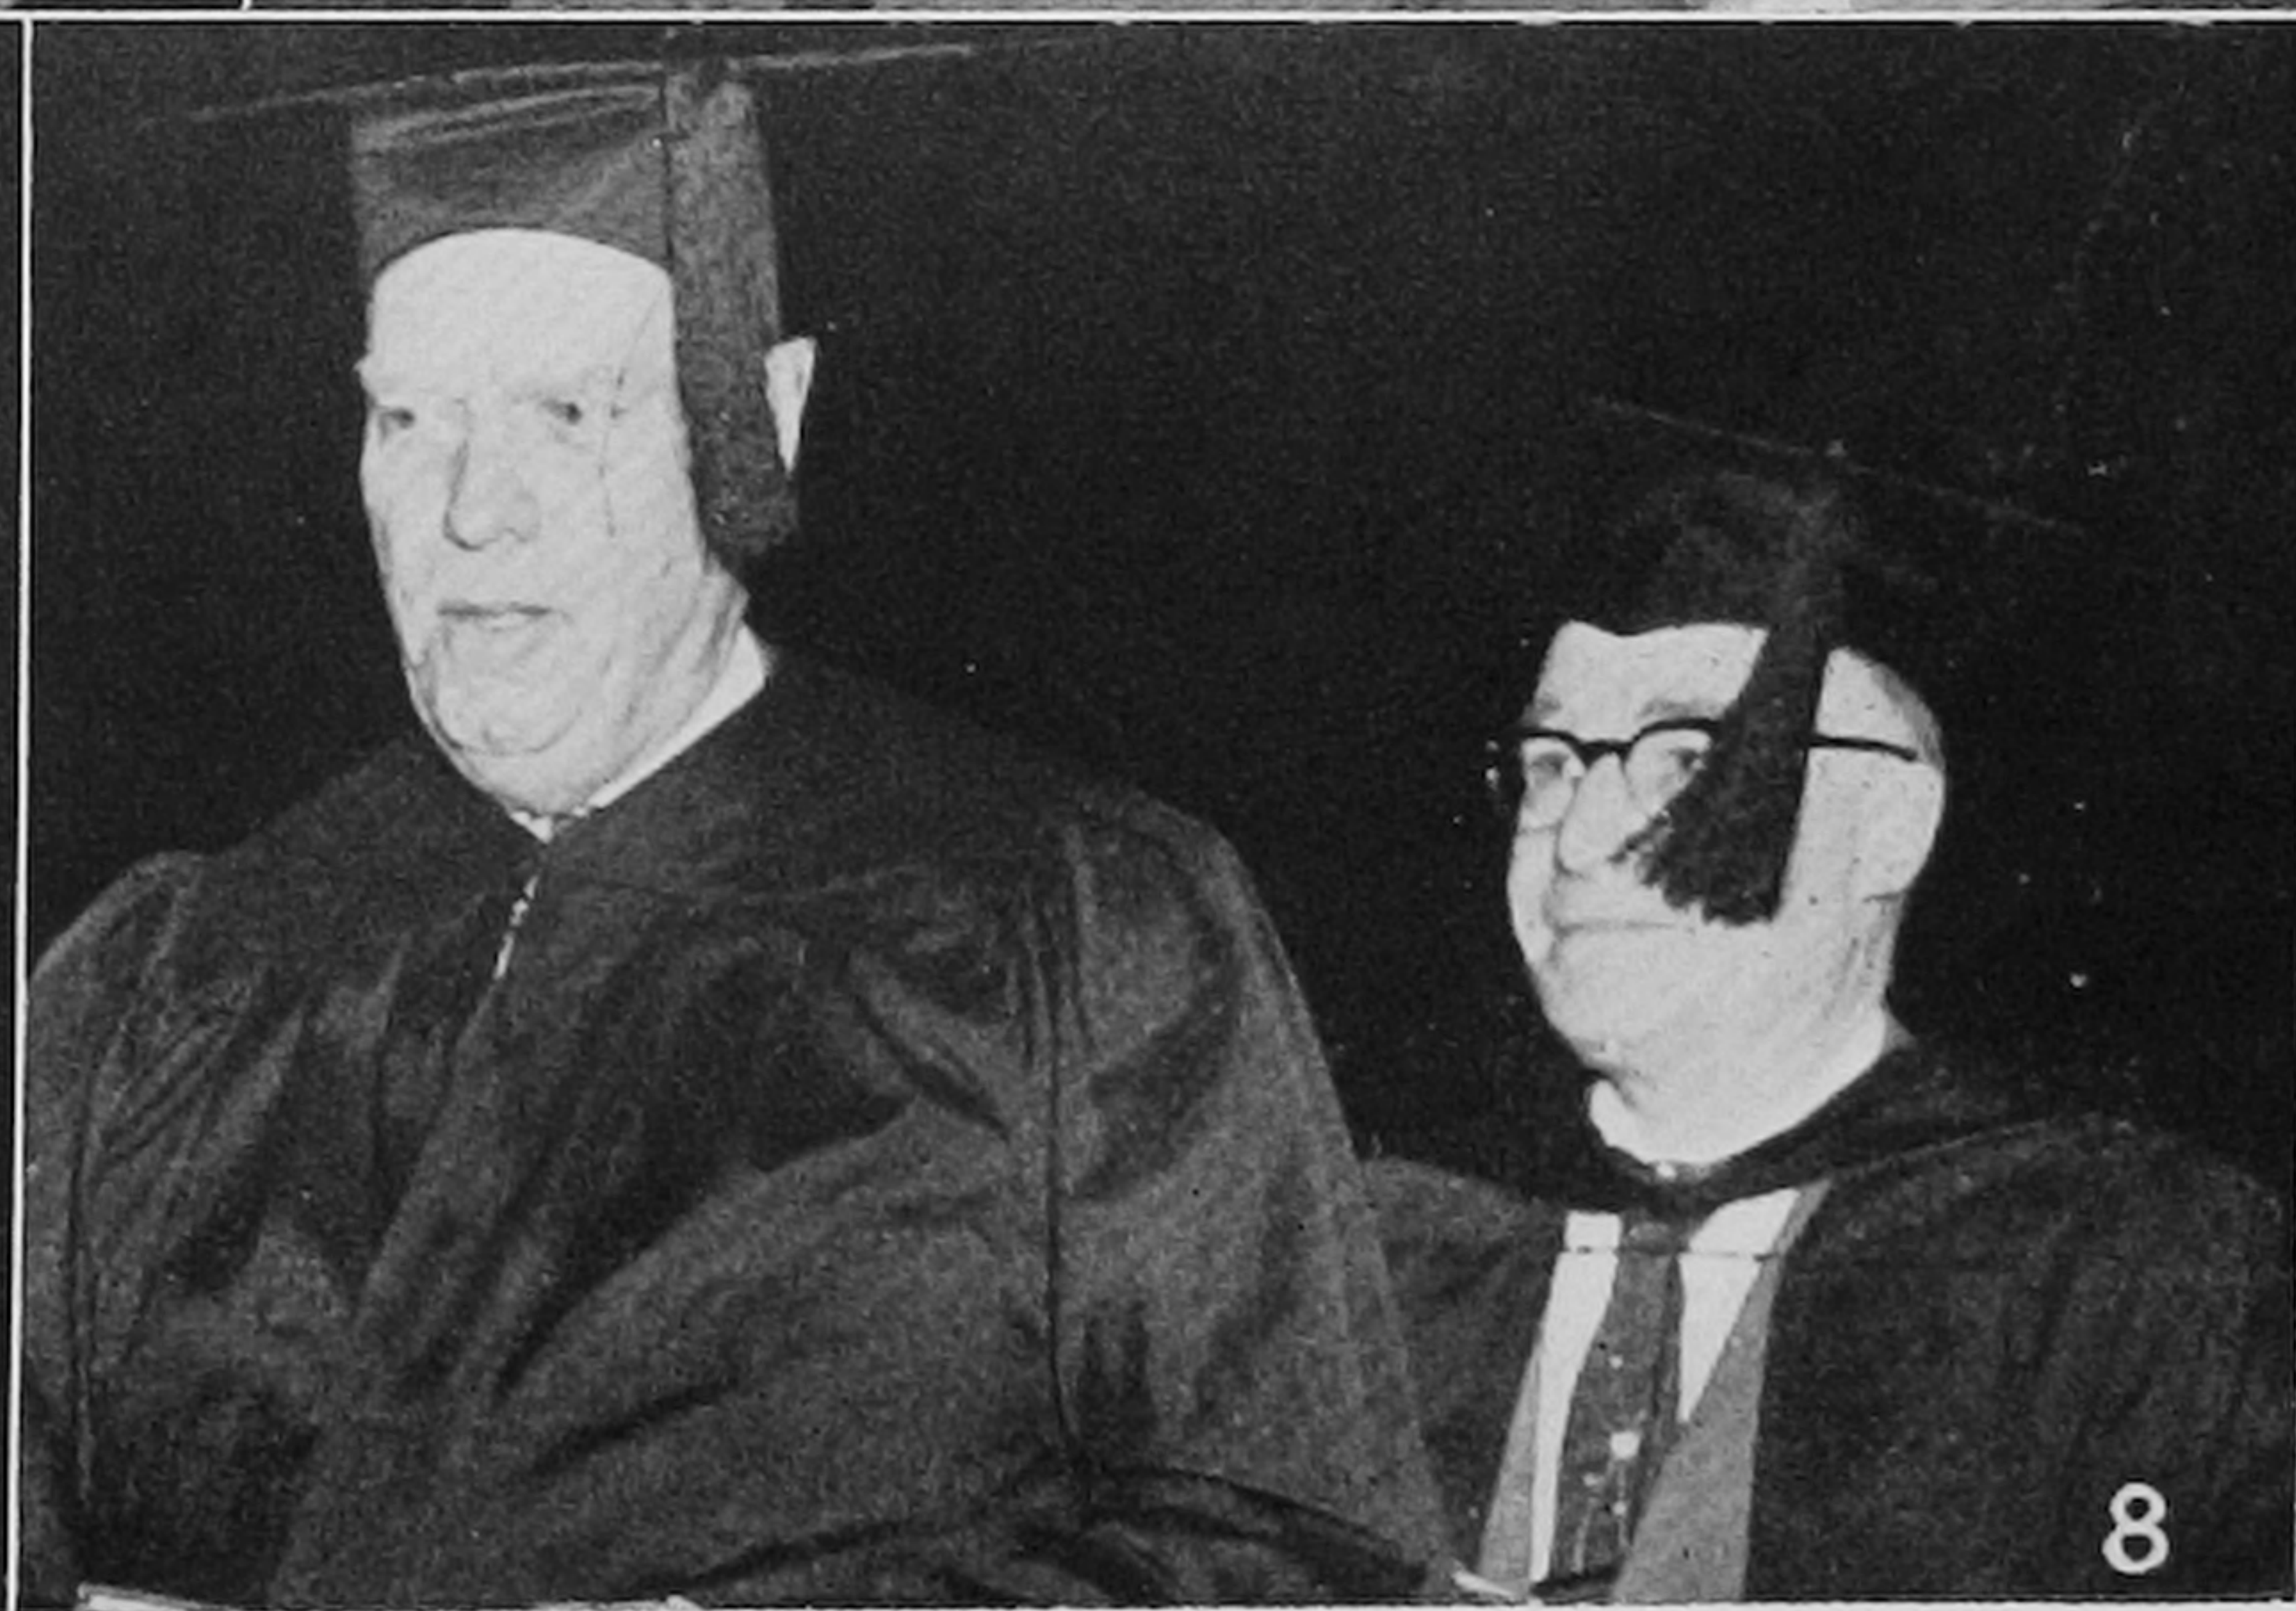

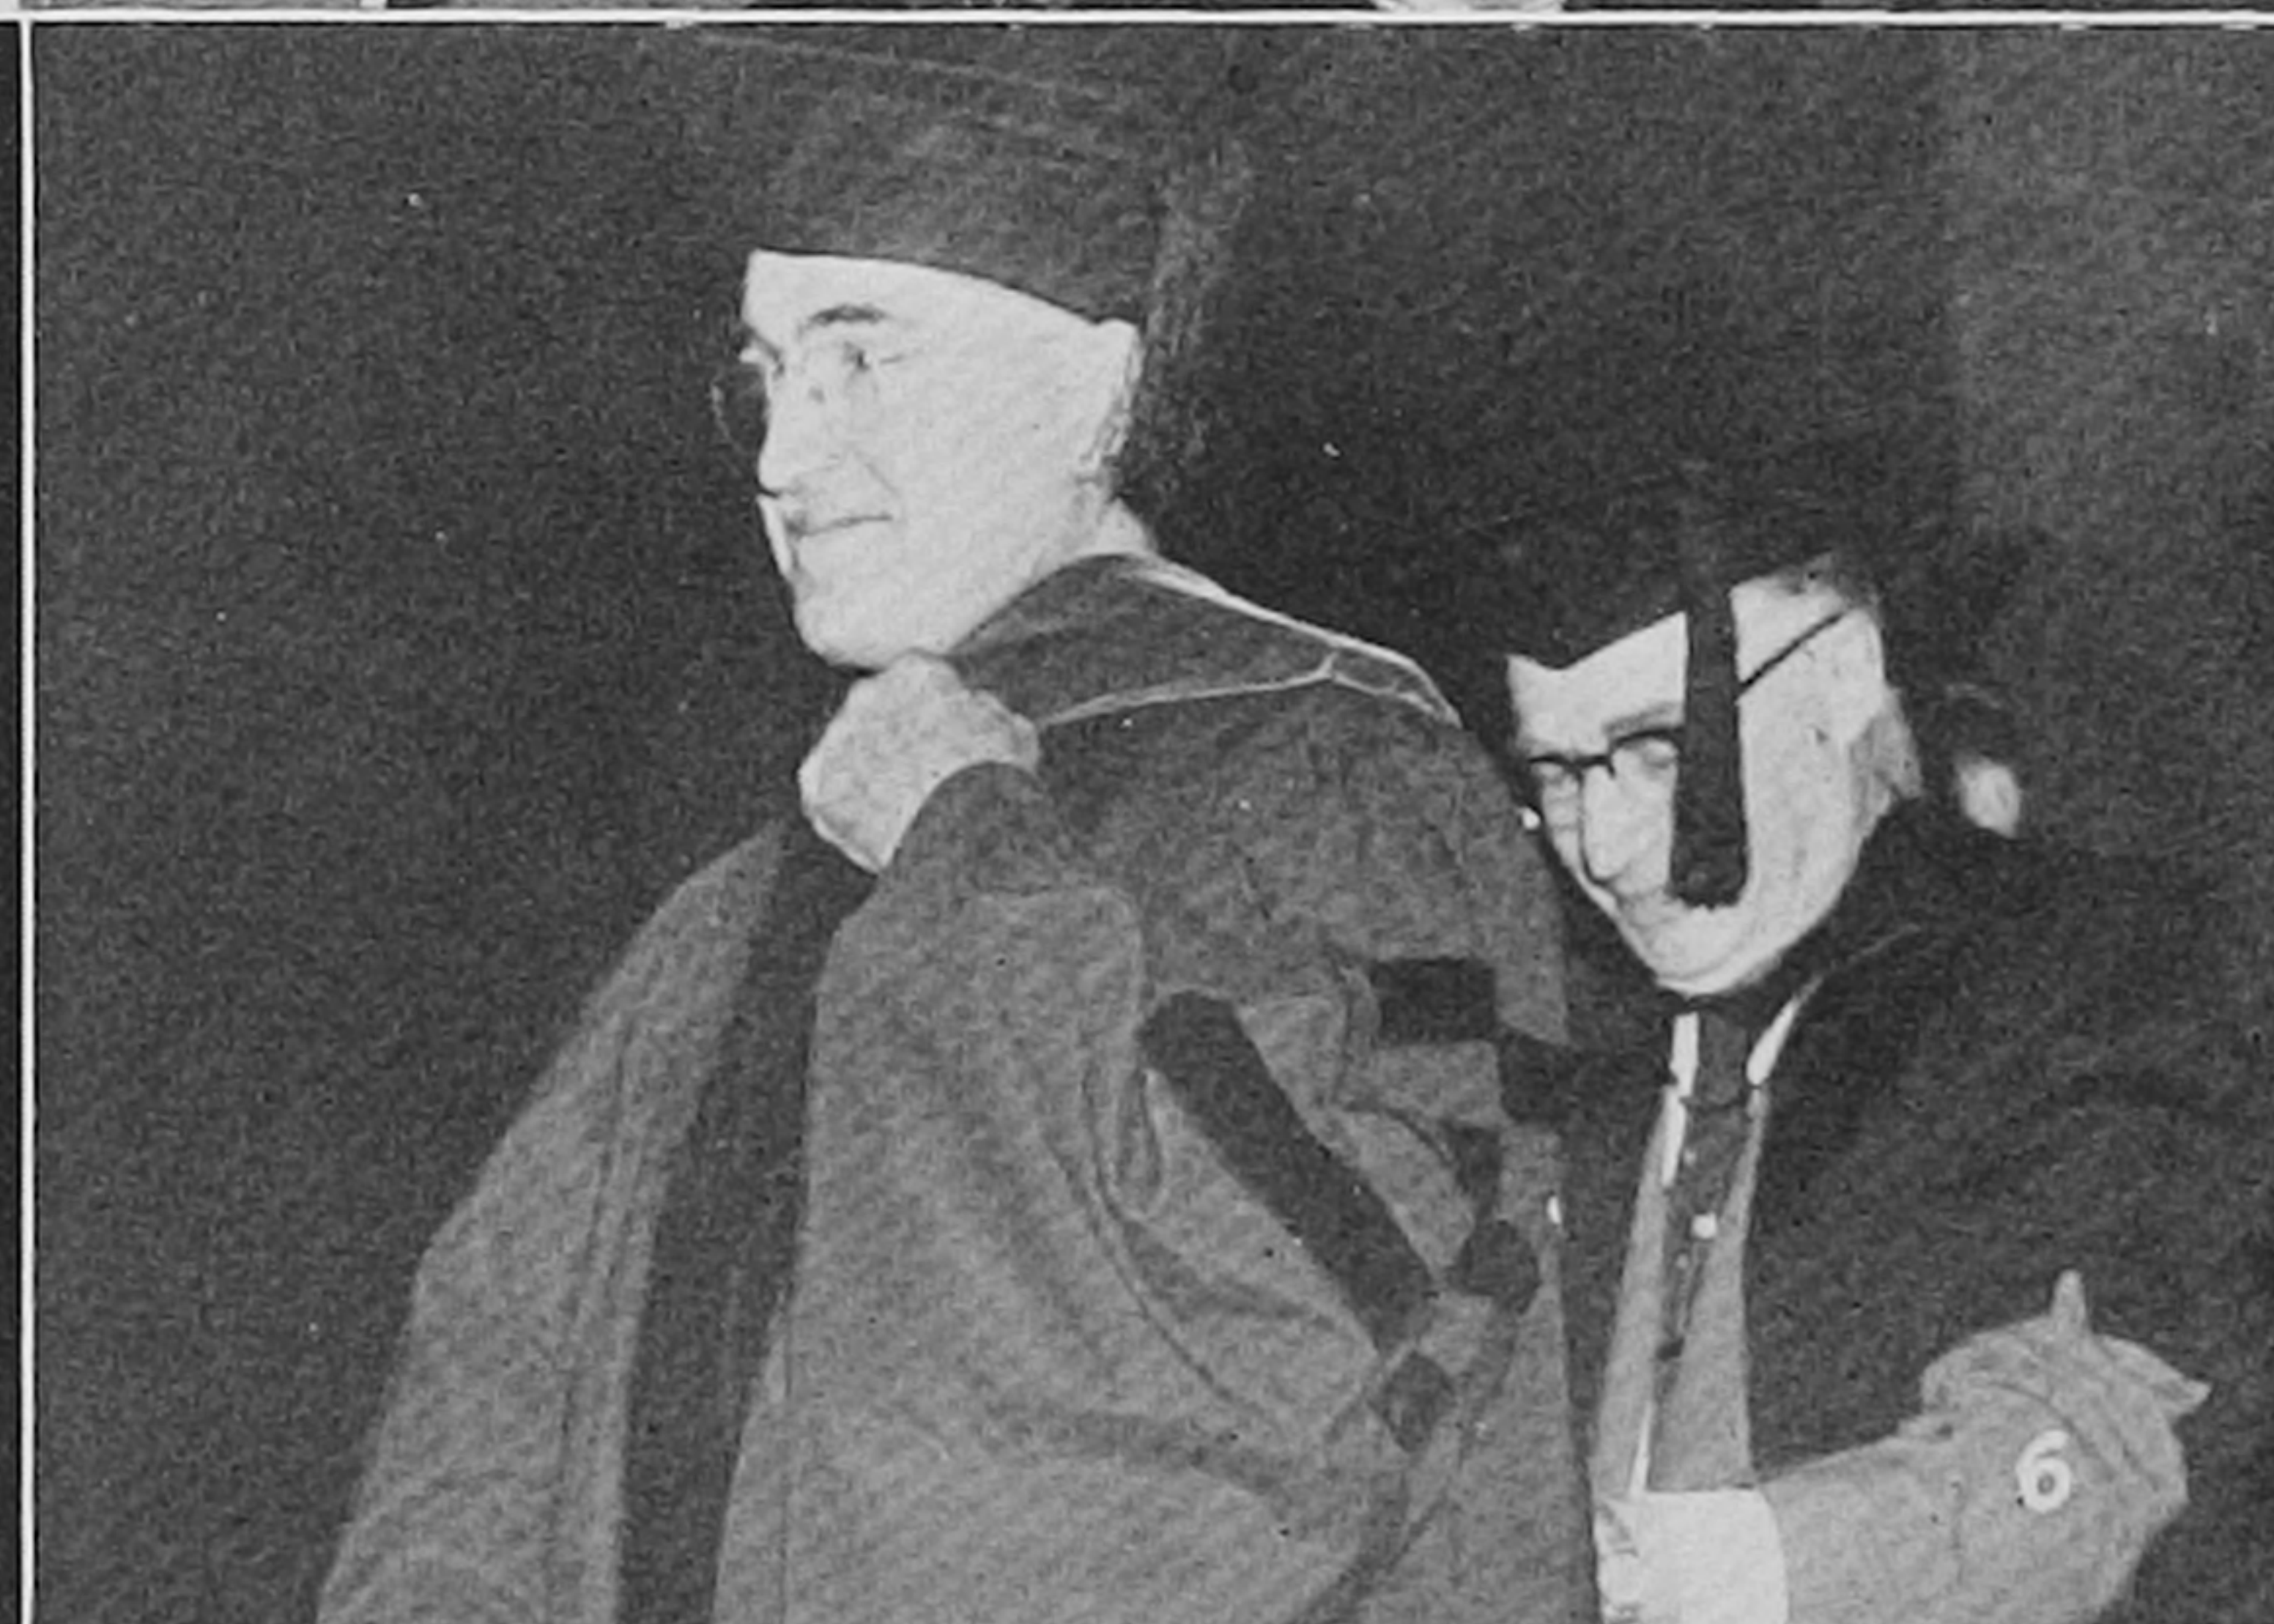

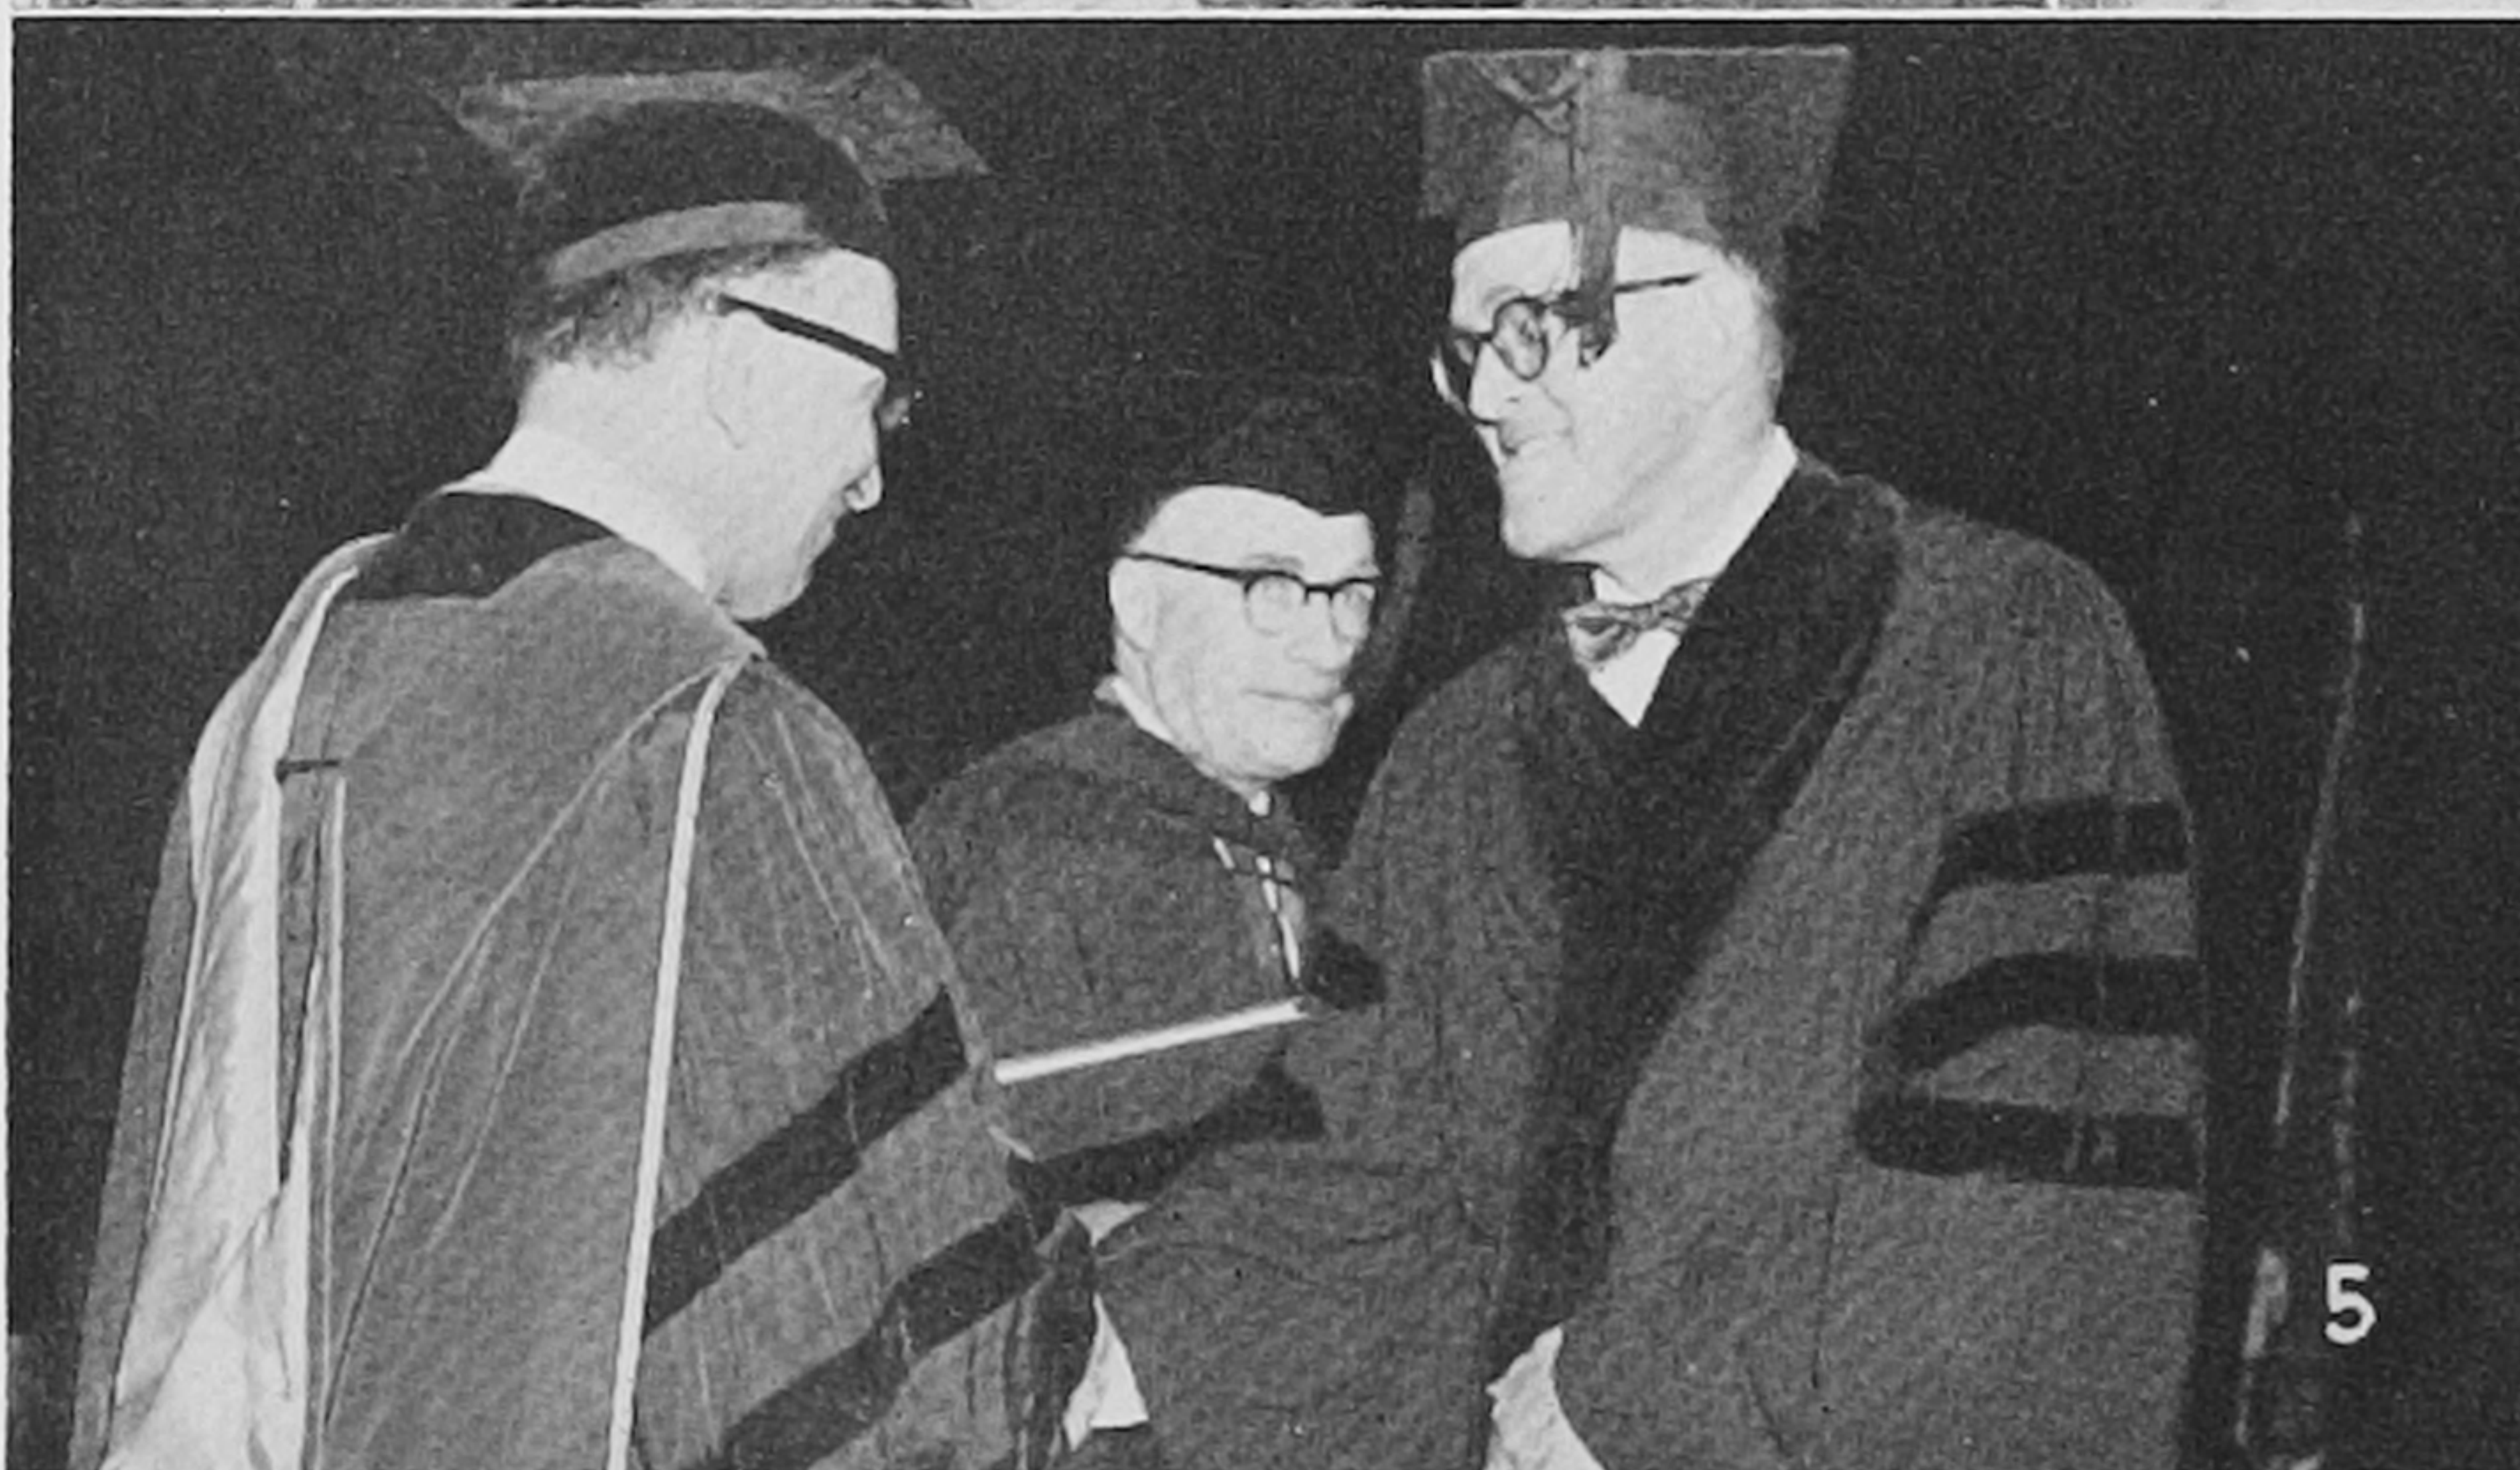

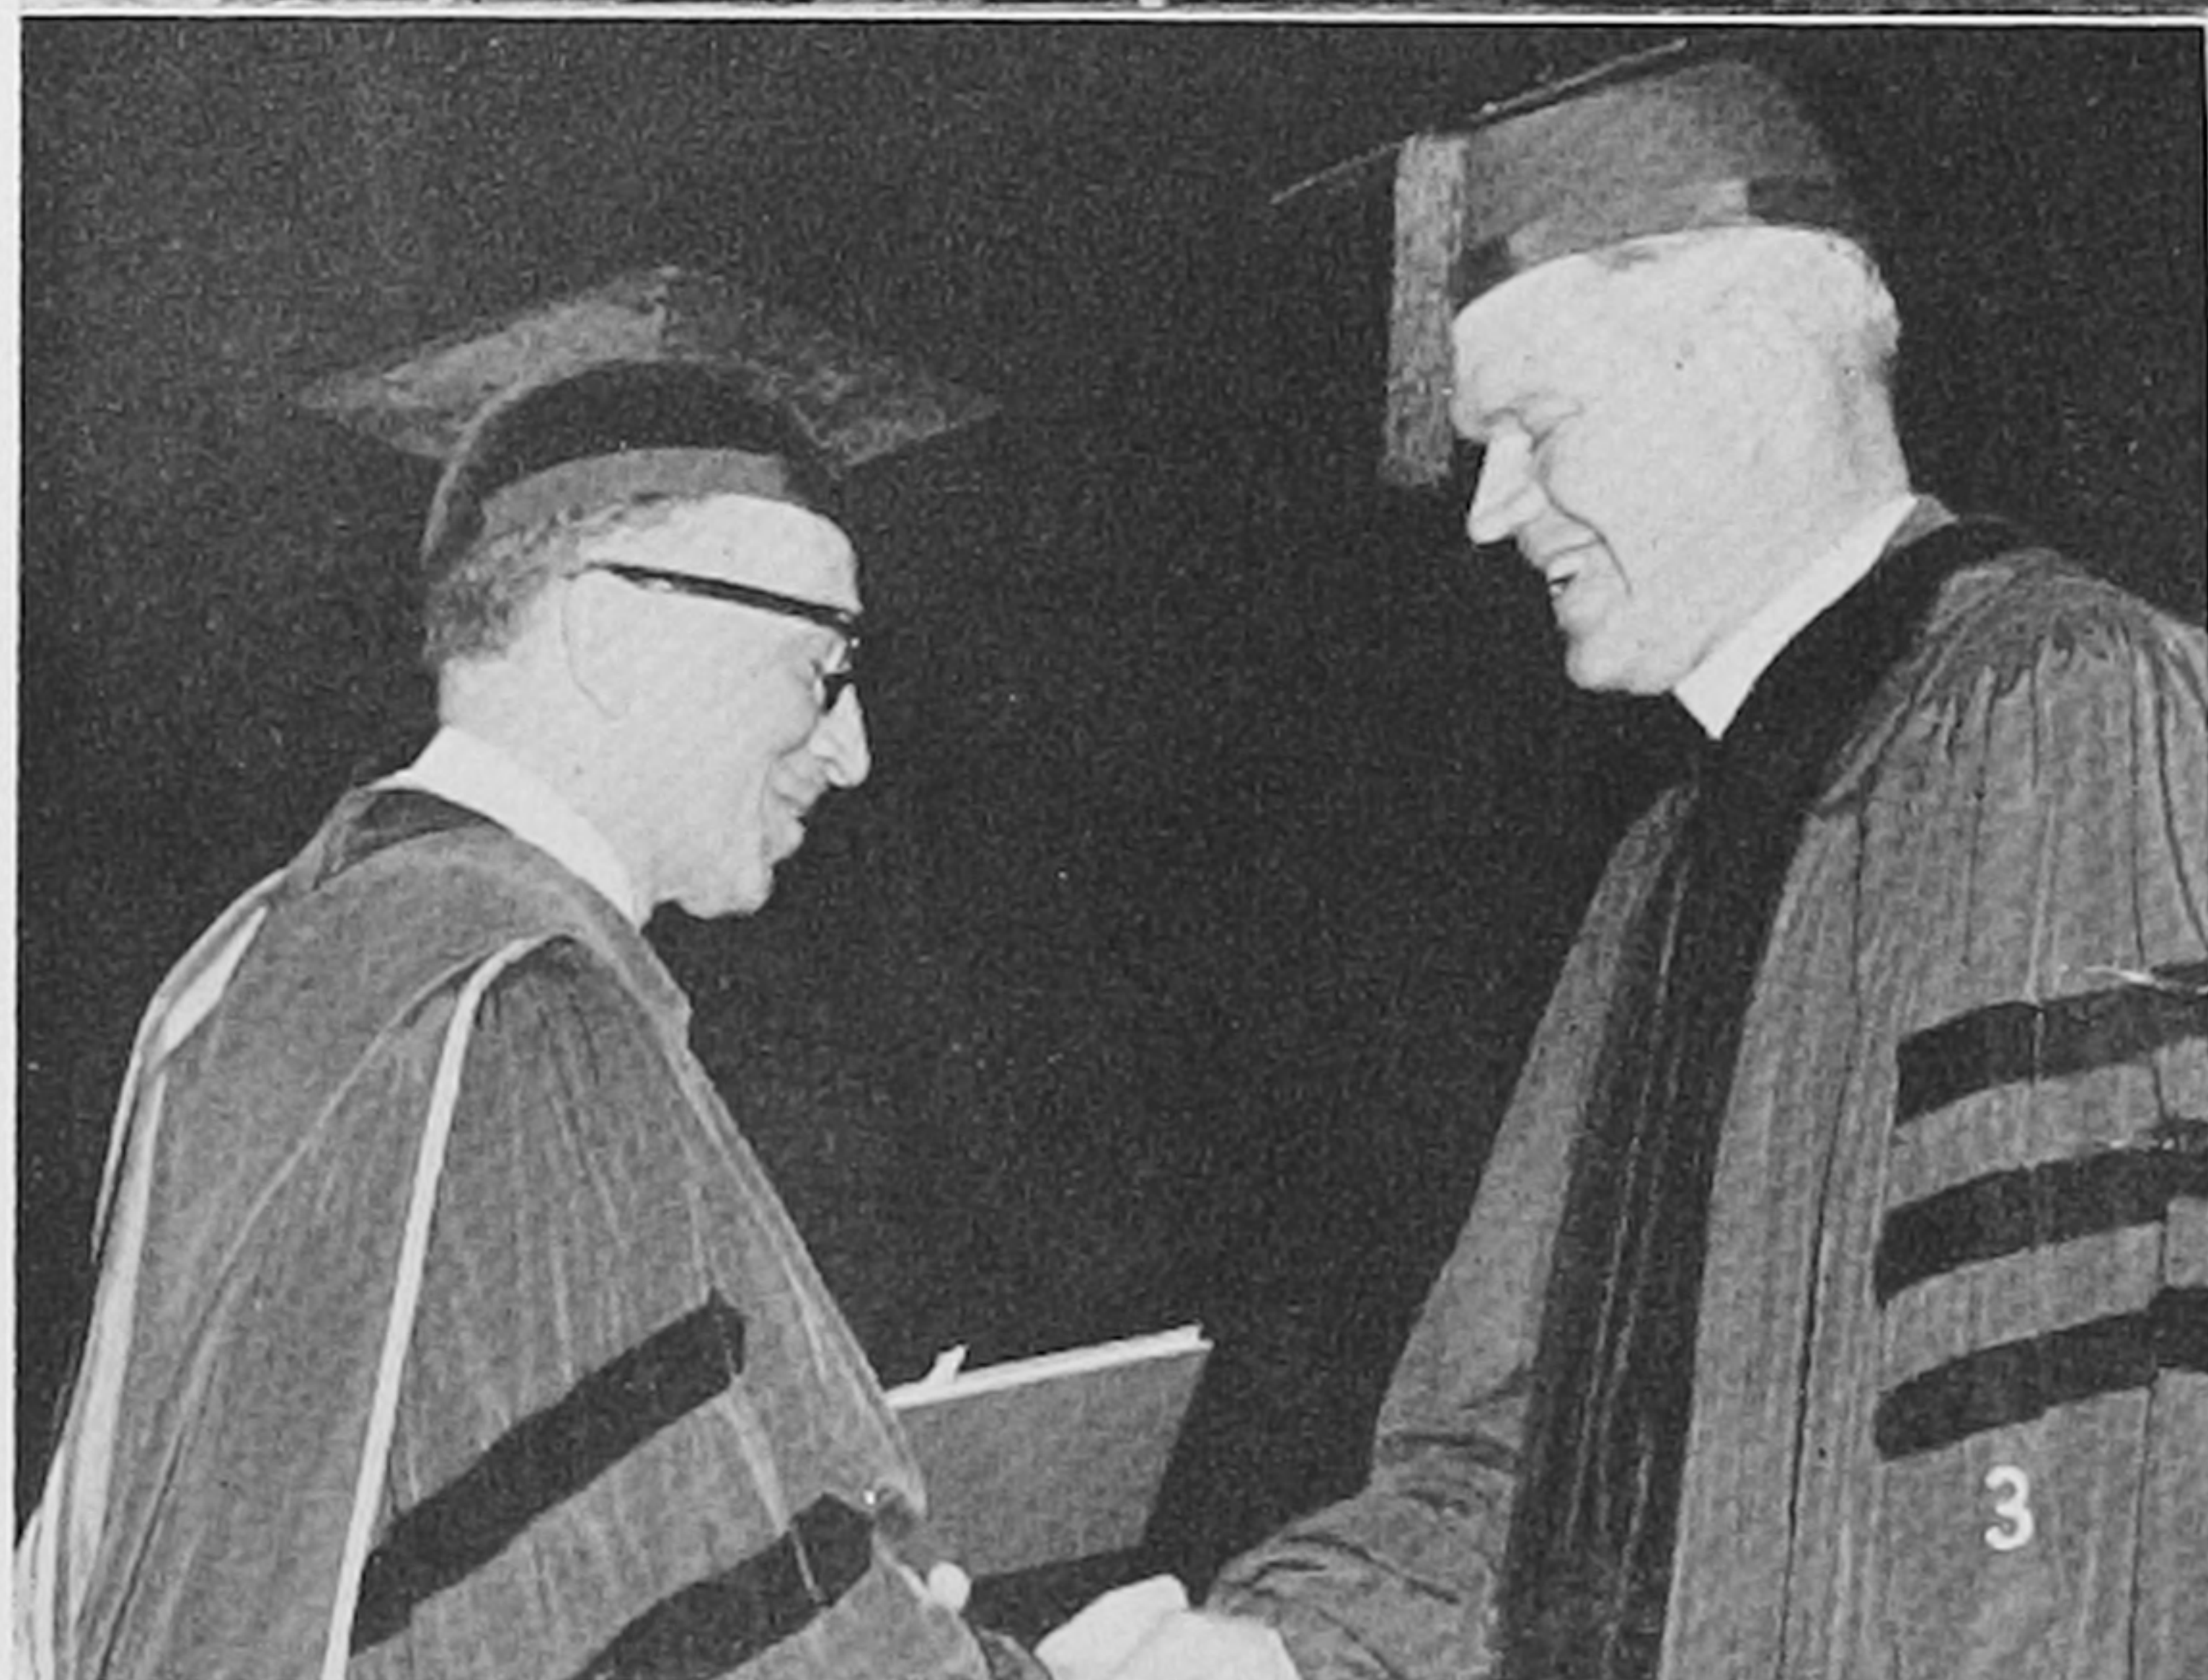

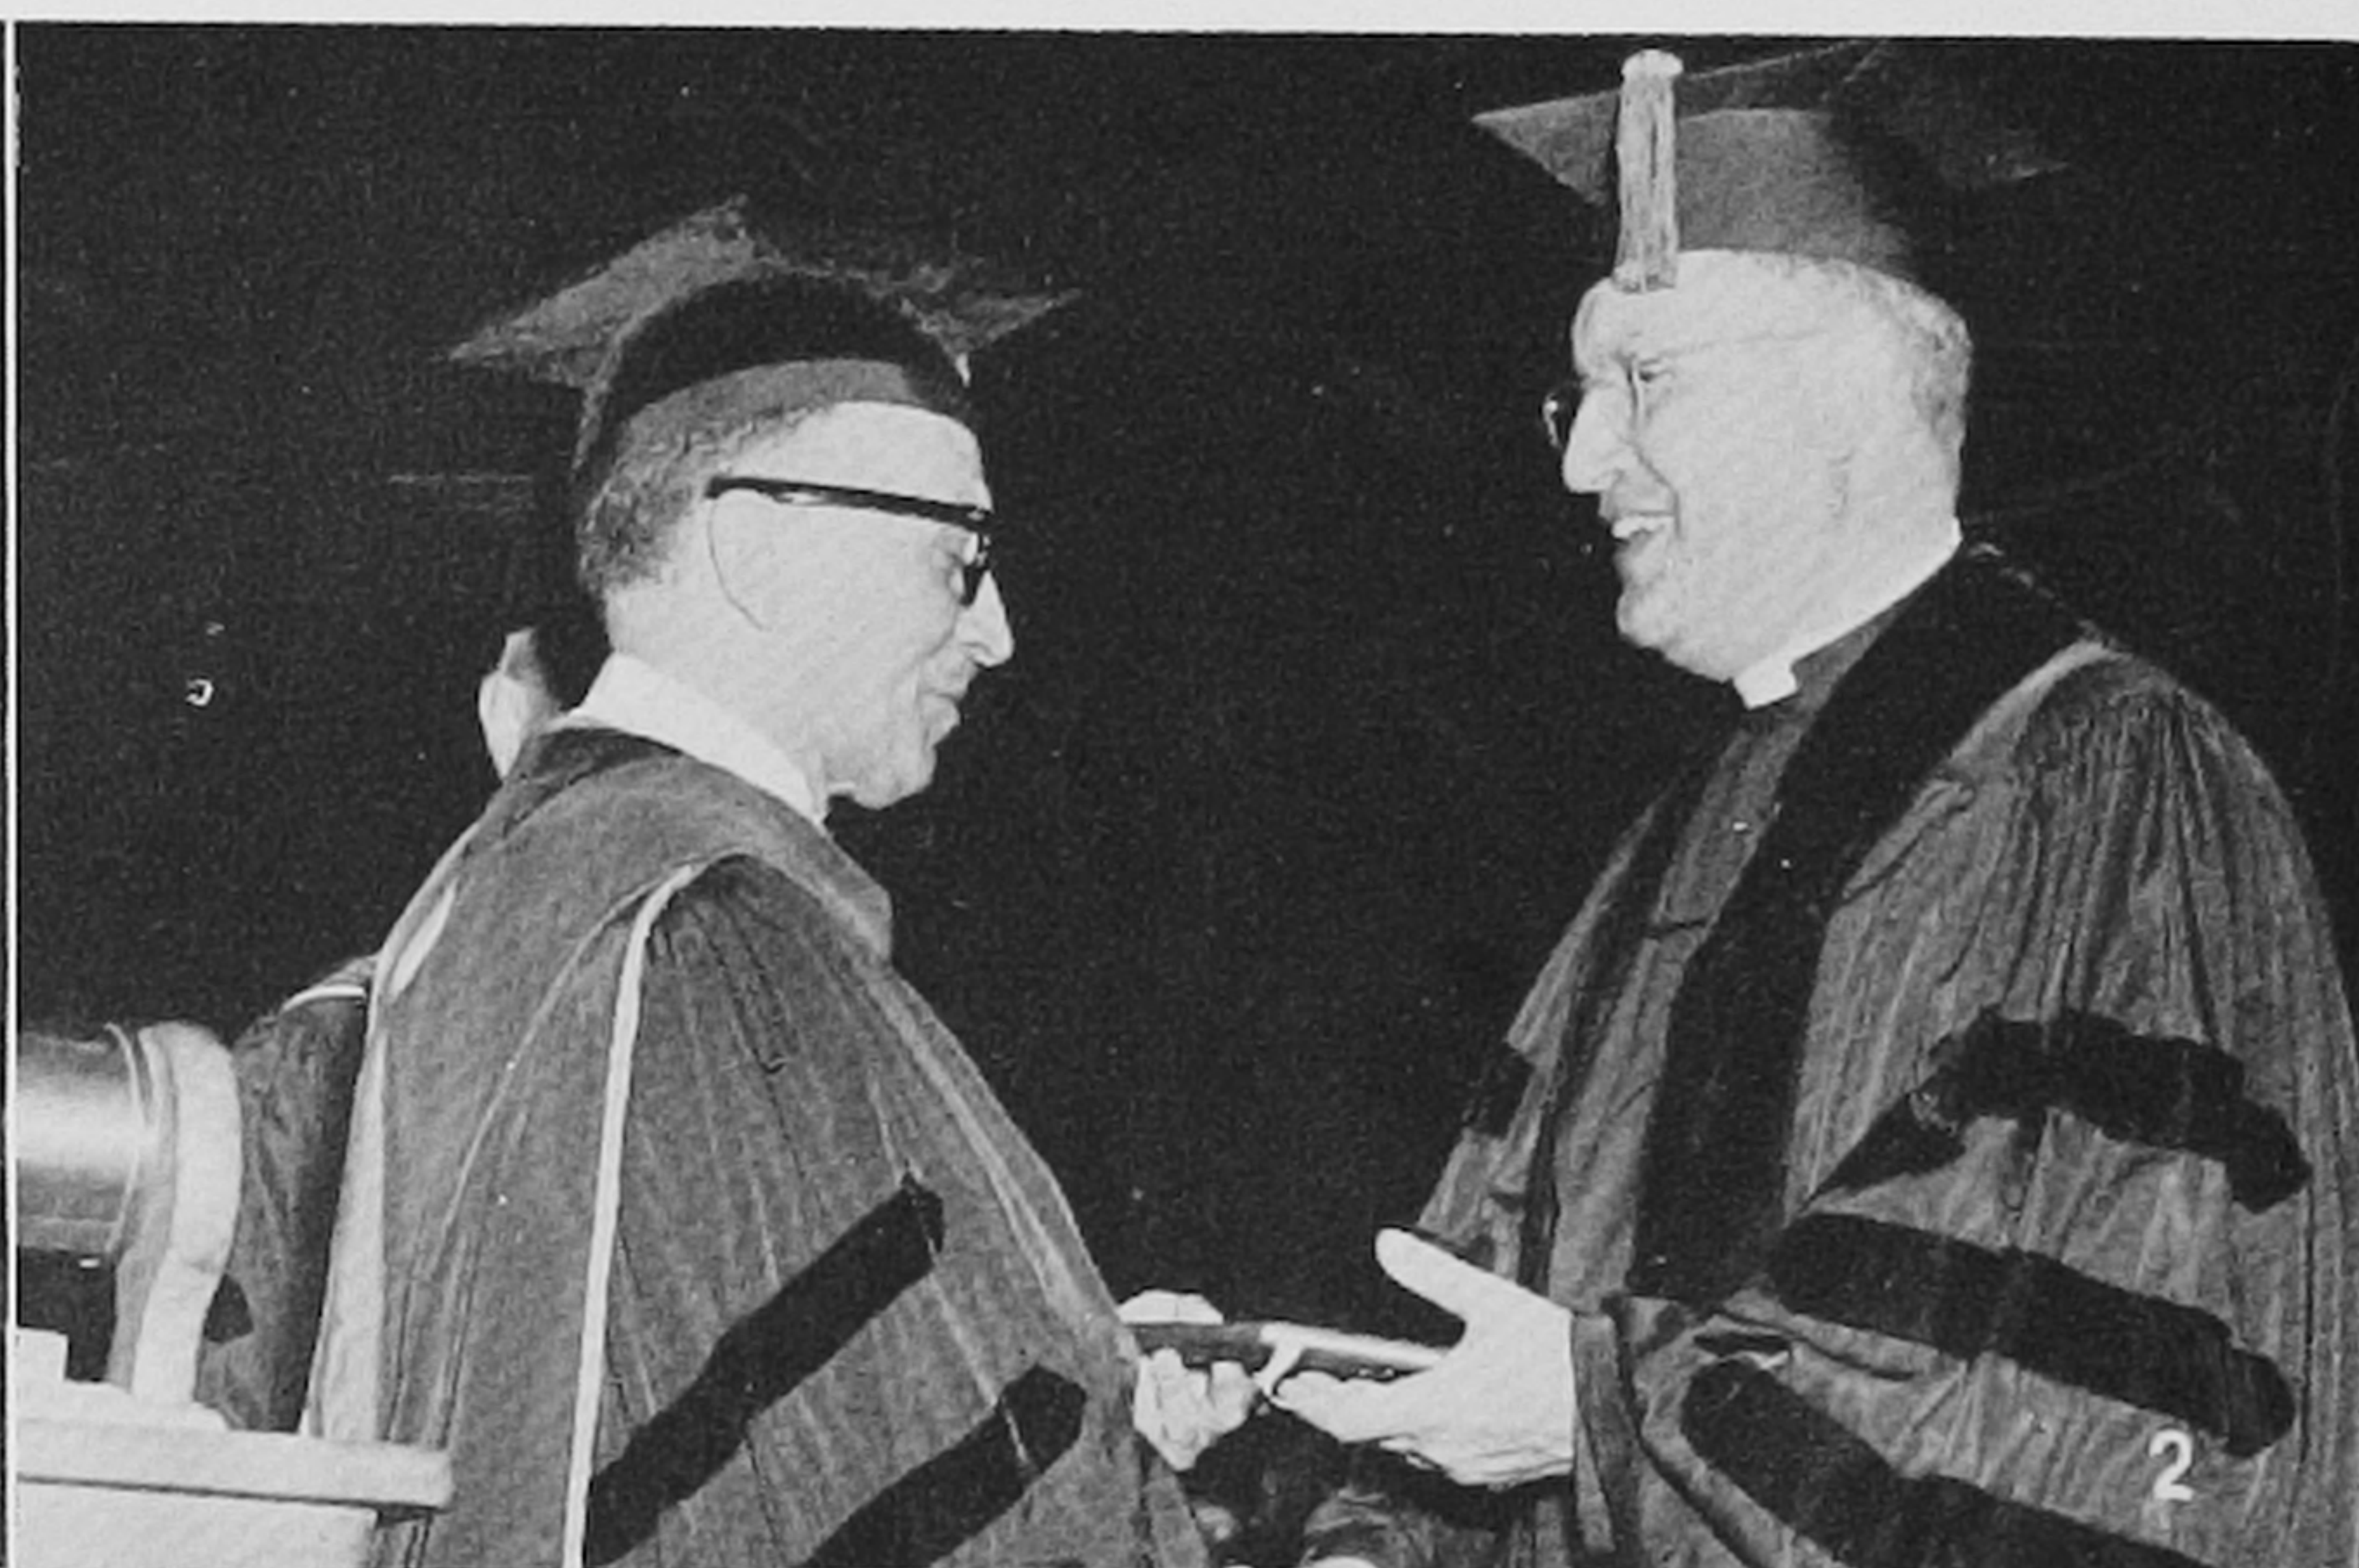

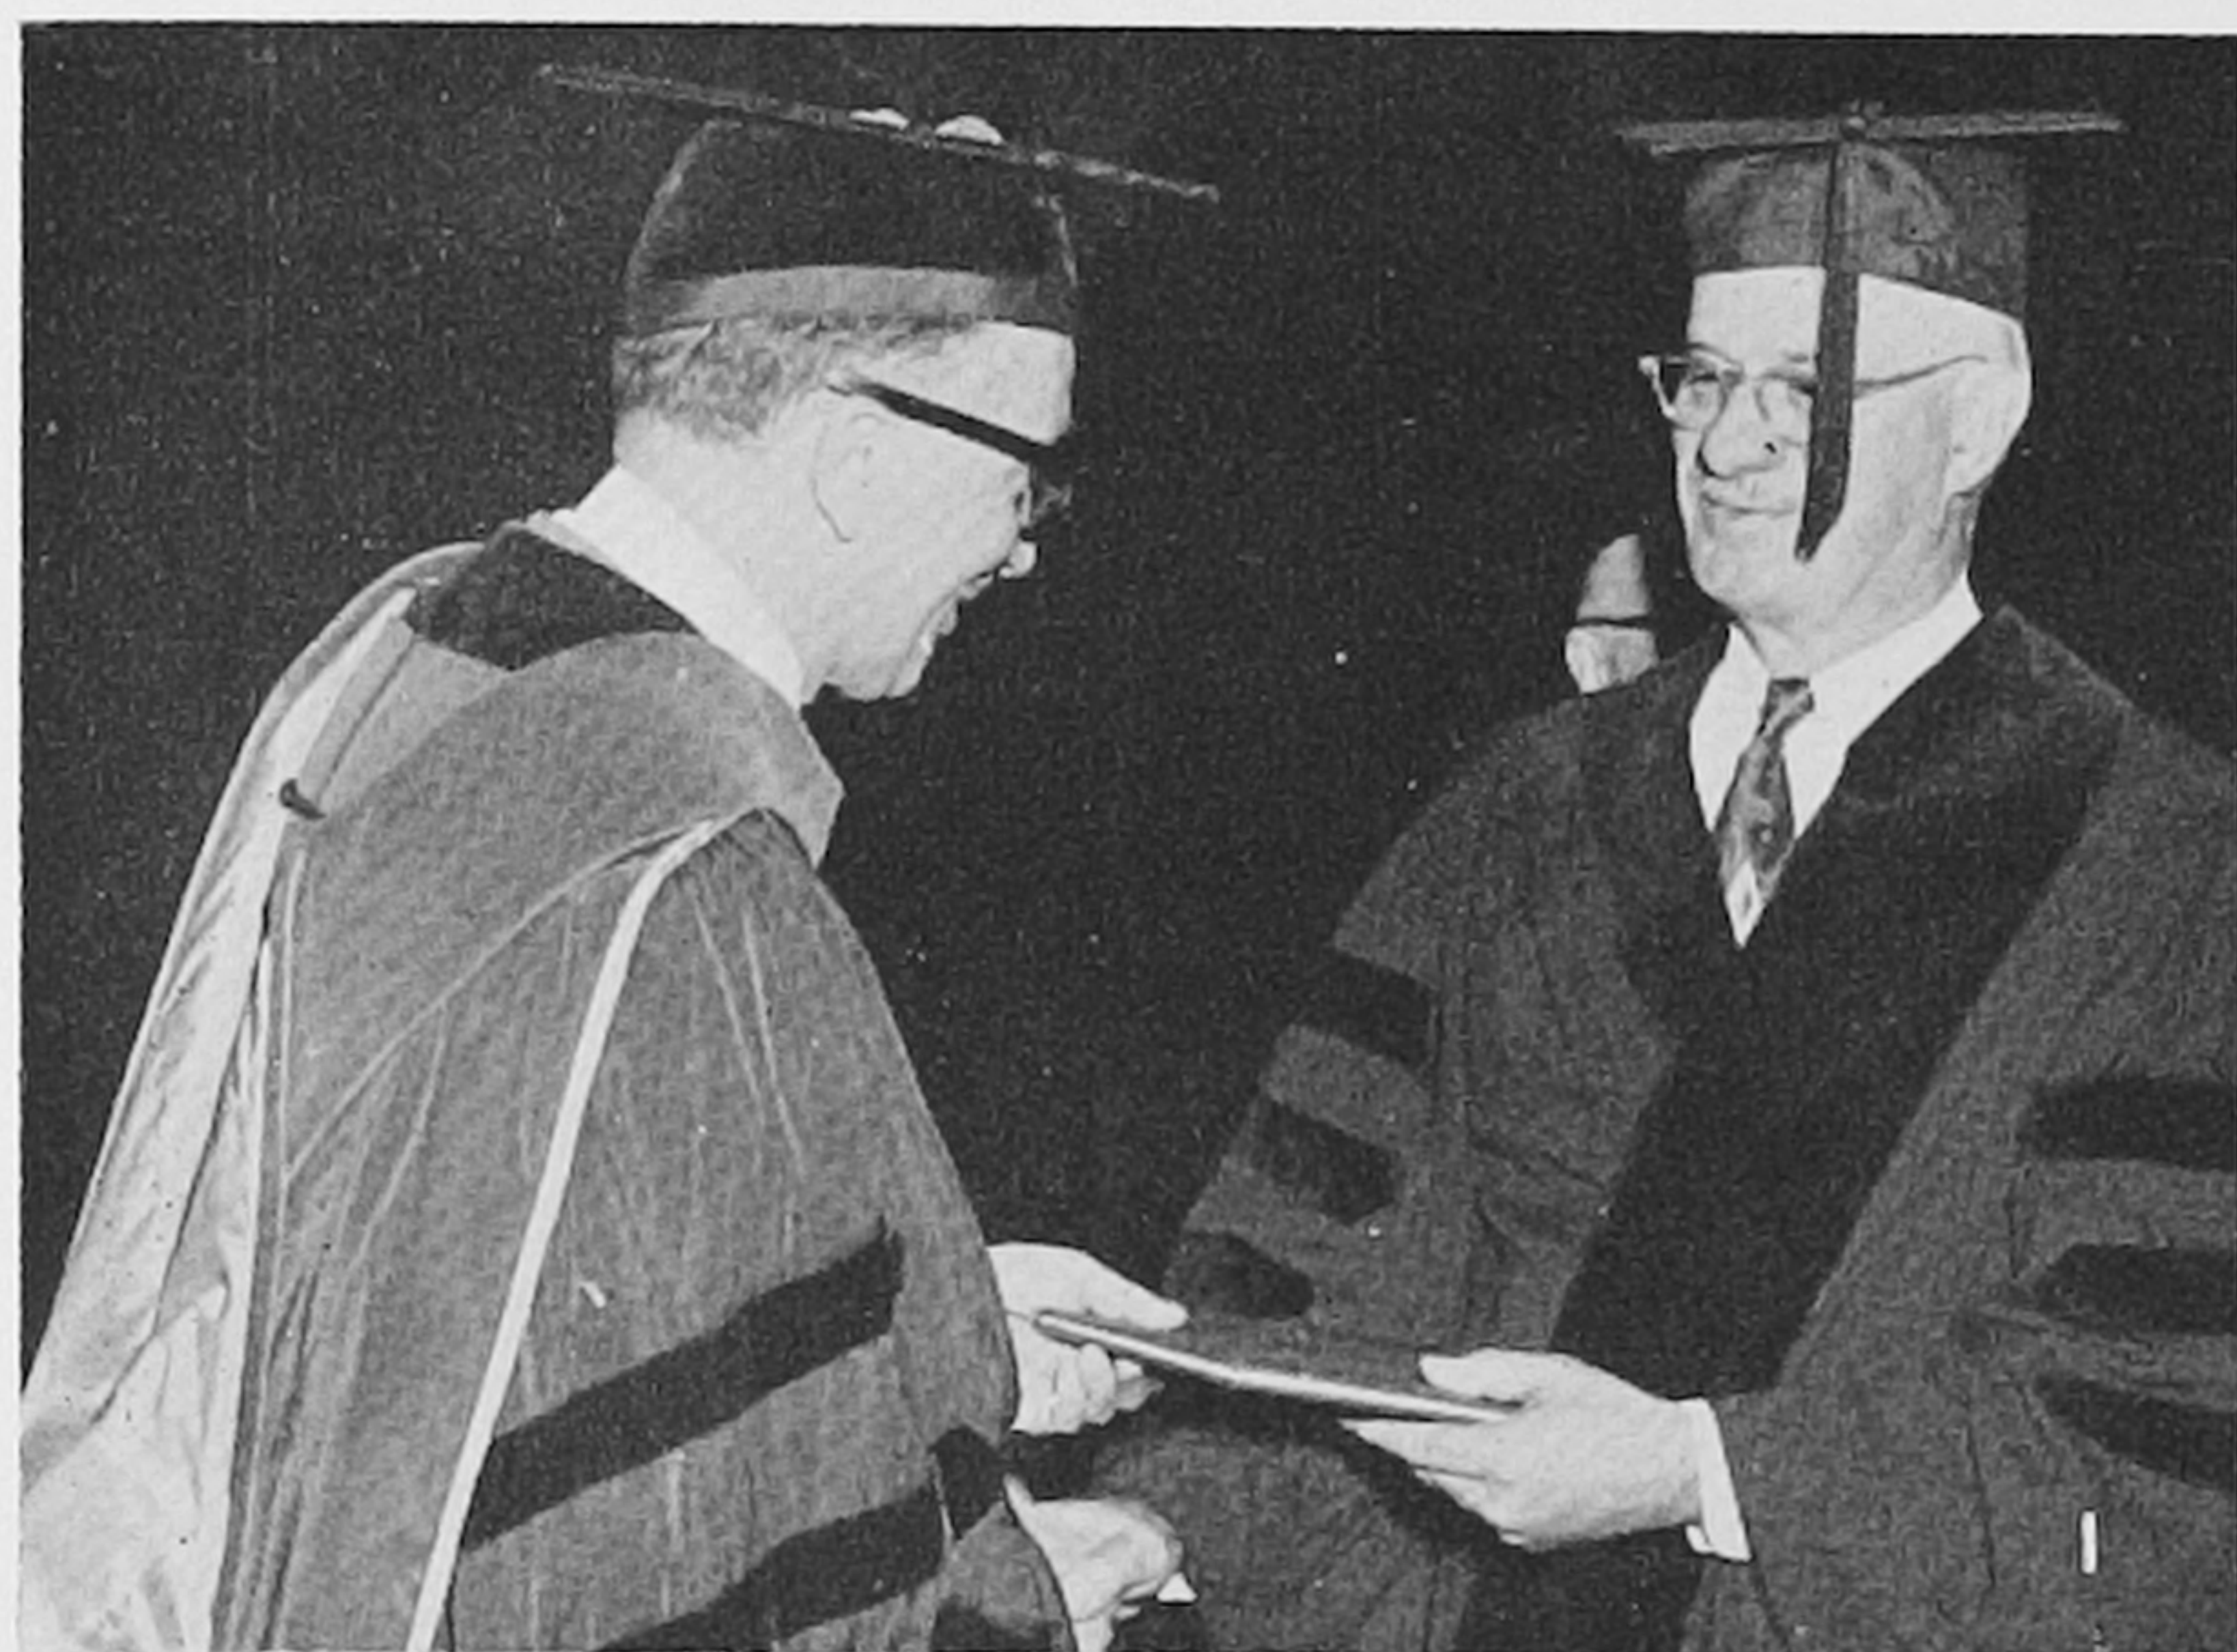

Mr. Lee—whose salary will be paid into January of 1957—joined the staff of the College in 1930. He was Editor of the Middlebury College Press until 1941 when he left for World War II service in the U.S. Navy. Upon returning to the College in 1945, Mr. Lee was appointed Dean of Men. He is the author of a number of books and various articles for periodicals and magazines on Vermont.

Harris E. Thurber, Assistant Professor of Political Science, has been appointed Acting Dean of Men for the 1955-1956 academic year.

Stanley V. Wright, Director of Alumni Relations and of the Development Program, and Professor John G. Bowker were the principal speakers at the Detroit Alumni Reunion Dinner. Alumni gather around the head table following the dinner.

Commencement—1955

CLEAR SKIES and a beautiful June day was the setting for Middlebury's 1955 Commencement exercises as eight honorary, nine Master of Arts and Science, and 261 Bachelor Arts degrees were conferred by the College in the Memorial Field House.

In addition, seventeen members of the Middlebury Reserve Officer Training Corps, were commissioned second lieutenants in the U.S. Army Reserve and two graduating seniors received ensign commissions in the U.S. Naval Reserve.

The Reverend Theodore P. Ferris, Rector of Trinity Church in Boston, delivered the commencement address. He said, in part, to the members of the Class of 1955:

"You have more significantly from my point of view something . . . to contribute, namely, your human approach to life. This college as I have known it, and only as an outsider, by reputation, in my mind has always been one of the strongholds in New England that has stood for what we call the humanities. It has been interested in language and literature and history and philosophy and the arts, as well as the sciences. And the humanities are simply the fruits of the human spirit. You can't steep yourself in humanities, language and literature and philosophy and history, without having some degree of respect and reverence for human beings, granted that some of them can be terribly difficult. Nevertheless, human beings are individuals who have the potential capacity to create the things you have been studying and, when you go into the world that you are going in, the same world you are living in now, but under different circumstances, you have this to contribute. By your voice and by your vote, by your silent influence and by the expression of your opinion, you can make it clear that you are approaching every world problem as basically a human problem. It may be a political problem; it may involve economic factors; it may ultimately, tragically, be a military problem, but basically it's a human problem. The tensions in the international world, the fears and the jealousies and the suspicions are the same kind of tensions that exist between two of you right here in this small college community.

"You will bring to world affairs by your opinion and the expression of that opinion something that the world needs greatly because we are likely, when these things become elongated and projected into such vast proportions, to forget that basically they are the same human problems that we deal with every day. If there is a war, it is people that are killed, not policies. It is human beings that are destroyed, not governments. One of the things that educated men and women have to contribute to the big world of public events is this everlasting reminder that the world's basic problems are human problems, and that they will not be solved unless they are approached from the human point of view.

"One other thing you have to offer as educated men and women, and I can't emphasize this too much. I am not going to go into it in great detail because I think you will know what I mean. That is, you will have the open mind of an educated person. Certainly if Middlebury has made any impression upon you at all, it has pushed open the shut places of your mind. You've confronted new ideas; you've met new people; you have been forced to entertain new conceptions and new points of view and new approaches and attitudes to practically everything, and I pray that you will never let those minds close. One of the curses of American life is the tightness with which good people can close their minds. The open mind is not so open that it's like a sieve and doesn't retain anything. It's open like the door of a friendly home that invites everyone in, strangers as well as friends. It doesn't invite them all to stay, but it invites them all in and gives them the hospitality of the family."

President Samuel S. Stratton conferred the honorary degrees and cited the recipients, in part, as follows:

Theodore Parker Ferris—"Eloquent expositor of the Christian doctrine with both voice and pen, your sermons and your writings have brought to you well deserved national recognition. As rector of Boston's venerable and renowned Trinity Church, you are a distinguished successor to the many great preachers who since Colonial days have occupied New England pulpits."

Katharine Cornell—"Gracious lady so well-known by so many and with so much affection; honored so often in high places. In honoring you, we give recognition not merely to the perfection you have achieved as an artist, but to your outstanding contribution to the American theater and to the joy you have brought to our people in the great cities and the less great cities of our land."

Cornelius Vander Starr—"Without the helping hand of wealth and influence, your own diligence, intelligence and integrity have brought you into that small circle of outstanding business leaders to whom all of us are indebted for the wise and humane management of our economic affairs. You have always found time to take a friendly and personal interest in young men of many nationalities and you have made it possible for them to complete their education in this country. We also give recognition to your splendid contribution to the welfare of Vermont and to the thousands of skiers who find healthy recreation on our winter posles."

Laurence Frederick Whittemore—"Native son of our neighboring state to the east, we pay tribute to those qualities of mind, heart, and character which have brought you from a minor post in railroading to positions of outstanding leadership in banking, transportation and industry. Of deeper significance are the high purposes, the courage and the integrity which have motivated your persistent championship of causes both private and in the interest of the public welfare of our New England states."

George Russell Harrison—"For many years the distinguished institution which you serve and Middlebury College have been closely associated in a joint educational project."

A LUMNI

A Middlebury man is one of seven Americans working in the United States Consulate behind the "bamboo curtain" in Red Hanoi in Vietnam, Indo-China. Louis Rosso, '49, has been a vice-consulate in Communist-held Hanoi since October 1, 1954. In the above picture he is shown at the left in front of the double iron grating put on the windows of the consulate for the seige period. With him is Donald Barrett of Redmond, Washington, another consulate employee.

The seven consular officials pass their untroubled days in the spacious building. They are the only Americans except for one lone journalist in this Red land of 12 million rice peasants.

Just how these seven American consular officials happen to be in Hanoi is quite a mystery. Certainly Ho Chi Minh, the Communist leader of the young Red Land did not invite Uncle Sam to remain. He has spies watching the consulate night and day.

Many people, including the Americans themselves wonder why they are staying. The question is permissible. Staying where one is not wanted does not prove much except that Yanks don't run easily.

When the eight powers signed the Geneva agreement they divided the country of Vietnam roughly in half, giving the northern sector to Ho Chi Minh and the South to Bao Dai and the French.

The final political settlement in Vietnam will be made by National elections between Communist leader

Ho Chi Minh and Bao Dai in 1956. Then if Ho Chi Minh takes all he can decide whether he wants United States diplomats and consular officials in his country. If the Bao Dai side wins, Americans will of course, be heartily welcome.

Vietnam is a little land without any important industrial development. Still it is the inflamed appendix of Asia and once during the battle of Dien Bien Phu it was touch and go whether the third World War would start here.

Mr. Rosso has been in the diplomatic service for three years. From 1952 to 1954 he served as language interpreter in Trieste, leaving that troubled Italian city for the Vietnam assignment just before peace came.

Of the Hanoi people Mr. Rosso says, "Of course, their standard of living is much inferior to ours. As a matter of fact there is no comparison. Everywhere I have the impression of filth; the people, the streets, the food they eat. Once again I realize how lucky we are in the United States and how much we have to be thankful for.

"There are two lakes in the city called the big lake and small lake. There are always three or four dentists plying their trade around the lakes.

"Their equipment consists of a chair, a non-electric drill worked by foot and a pair of pliers. Of course there's always a crowd of people around the poor victim. See what I mean about the standards of cleanliness compared with dentists in the U.S.?"

"Hanoi itself is a middle-sized city and was built up and controlled by the French until they were forced to leave. The Communist troops came in on October 10 and 11 and they held a parade, soldiers, trucks and weapons. The Communist flag has appeared all over and they have erected triumphal arches. So far they have not bothered us.

"The local Communist government has announced that it does not recognize the United States Consulate here at Hanoi because we do not recognize it. The U.S. Government, on the other hand, has made a public statement to the effect that the present government here is just a temporary one until the elections are held in the whole country in 1956. That's where the situation stands. However, it remains to be seen what steps the Communist government takes next.

"They may kick us out anyway or they may allow us to stay but at the same time they may restrict our movements. It's all uncertain but interesting and a new experience to say the least."

BARBARA ERICKSON, '36

Mrs. Barbara (Wishart) Erickson, '36, a member of the faculty of the Chaffee School, Hartford, Conn., since January, 1938, has been appointed Director of the school.

Mrs. Erickson, whose husband is Director of Athletics at the Loomis School, was formerly a Latin, English and History teacher at the school. In addition, she taught typing and coached athletics. Before joining the Chaffee faculty, she taught at Hartford Public High School and Windsor, Vt., High School.

The Erickson's daughter, Betty Ann, is a junior at the school.

H. R. VAN GAASBECK, '41

H. Robert Van Gaasbeck, '41, Security Analyst in the Investment Department of the Springfield Fire & Marine Insurance Co., Springfield, Mass., has been appointed Superintendent of the department. After Mr. Van Gaasbeck was graduated from Middlebury College in 1941, he attended Babson Institute for one year and was graduated from Harvard Business School in 1947. He is a member of the Boston Security Analysts Society and a member of the faculty at Western New England College. Mr. Van Gaasbeck is married to the former Martha Newton, '43, and the couple has two children. They live at 76 Oakwood Dr., Springfield, Mass.

JAMES B. FISH, '34

James B. Fish, Jr., has been made Tax Administrator for the accounting firm of Lybrand, Ross Bros., and Montgomery, New York City. Mr. Fish has been with this firm since 1936. He has been on the audit staff, and for the past five years has had charge of the book, "Montgomery's Federal Taxes." This book is a tax guide on the preferred ways of doing business for maximum tax protection.

After graduating from Middlebury, Mr. Fish attended Harvard Business School where he received his Master's Degree. He is a C.P.A., and is a member of the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants.

In the town of Demarest, N. J., where Mr. Fish resides with his wife and three children, he is active in the Scouts and has been Cub Scout Treasurer for three years.

MELVIN A. PERKINS, '22

Melvin A. Perkins, '22, is one of the authors of a treatise on synthetic dyes acclaimed as the "most authoritative work ever published on the subject" and the latest addition to the distinguished series of American Chemical Society Monographs. The series, started in 1920 and now numbering 127, provides original, comprehensive reports on specific areas of chemical knowledge.

Mr. Perkins, one of nineteen experts on dyes and the intermediate compounds used in making them, contributed chapters to the book—"The Chemistry of Synthetic Dyes and Pigments," and published by the Reinhold Publishing Corporation, New York. The writing and production of the 752-page volume required more than five years. Printing alone took two years, partly because of the difficulty of drawing some 1,500 complex structural dye formulas.

All the contributors were on the staff of Du Pont's Jackson Laboratory, Wilmington, Del., one of the world's largest laboratories of industrial chemical research, and each had from 12 to 40 years' experience in his chosen field.

The preface of the book, stated that the contributors were largely motivated "by a desire to contribute something to lighten the task of training the scientists and technical men of tomorrow, and to repay in part our debt to those who in years gone by, at home and abroad, developed the fundamental scientific information on which the modern chemical industry is based."

WALLACE F. BUTTRICK, '47

Dr. Wallace F. Buttrick, '47, who as a U. S. Naval medical officer served two years with the Joint United States Military Assistance Program to Greece has opened an office in Nashua, N. H., for the practice of internal medicine.

Dr. Buttrick was one of four physicians and surgeons caring for some 4,000 people, mostly civilians, who were in Athens on an advisory capacity in the Military Assistance program. While there, he learned enough of the Greek language so that he and his wife the former Thaylia McCreeley, were able to travel throughout the country. Dr. Buttrick was in Greece during two earthquakes and he visited the stricken areas and assisted in caring for the injured.

After graduating from Middlebury and the School of Medicine at the University of Vermont, he interned at Philadelphia, then went to the Johns Hopkins hospital House staff at Baltimore, Md., where he spent three years in specialized work in internal medicine and pathology.

Dr. and Mrs. Buttrick have a daughter who was born at the U. S. Air Force hospital at Wiesbaden, Germany, in July, 1952. The family resides at 43 Orange St., Nashua, N. H.

A. P. PAPKE, '25

Mr. Papke, '25, director of manufacturing for Tubular Products Dept. of the A. O. Smith Corp., Milwaukee, recently received on behalf of his department the company's accident prevention trophy. The trophy is awarded on the basis for the greatest contribution to accident prevention. Tubular Products won the initial possession of the trophy by consistently, during the past three years, maintaining a reduction of 50 per cent in the average frequency of accidents compared with the three years prior to that period.

Mr. and Mrs. Papke make their home at 5720 North 34th Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Robert W. Herdman, '50, is the new assistant director of New York University's Foreign Student Center. The NYU Foreign Student Center, which is located at the University's Washington Square Center in New York City, assists students from abroad with problems concerning their official stay in this country, academic programs, language difficulties, and acclimation to American college life. There are approximately 1,000 such students representing 78 nations at NYU. Mr. Herdman resides at 10 Wilson St., Springdale, Conn.

at Mary Fletcher Hospital, Burlington, Vt. He was chief resident and fellow in obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Vermont from July 1952 to June 1953. He opened a practice in Greenfield in September 1953.

ELLEN BAILEY GOODELL, '14

Mrs. Ellen Bailey Goodell, '14, has been selected as the Vermont Mother of 1955. Thirty years ago Mrs. Goodell was crippled with polio which left her completely paralyzed in one leg and has forced her to use a wheel chair or crutches.

A year later, tragedy visited the Goodell family again with the death of Mr. Goodell, leaving a crippled mother with the children, the oldest at the time being six and the youngest not quite a year.

Her youngest son, John, is working as an accountant for a Denver, Colo., firm and is studying for his master's degree for a Certified Public Accountant.

Harvey, is an electrical engineer for the Sprague Electric Co., in North Adams, Mass.

Her only daughter, Margaret, attended Middlebury. She was secretary for the New Hampshire State Pathologist in Hanover, when she married a young medical student, William Hunt, a graduate of the University of Michigan's School of Medicine who later served as an obstetrician for the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., and is now affiliated with a clinic at Fergus Falls, Minn.

Bailey Goodell, also attended Middlebury, served as a first lieutenant in the Air Corps during World War II and flew all his missions in the Pacific. He was the only one of her boys who received any war injury and that was a small piece of flak in one hand sustained while flying over Iwo Jima. He is a tool maker in Springfield for the Fellows Gear Shaper Co.

David Goodell graduated from Middlebury College in 1940 and served four and one-half years in the Army, discharged as a Captain in Chemical Warfare. He was principal at Derby Academy for five years, and is now studying for his doctorate at the University of Michigan.

Mrs. Goodell was born in Wells River on June 13, 1892, the only girl in a family of five boys. She was graduated from Middlebury in 1914, majoring in English. Mrs. Goodell was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and was a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority.

She taught for two years at Crafts-bury Academy and two more years at Haverhill Academy in Haverhill, N. H., before she married Harvey Edward Goodell on Nov. 27, 1917.

Her husband was secretary of civil and military affairs for Vermont Governor Horace Graham at the time of their marriage and also served in that capacity under Governor Percival Clement.

Although Mrs. Goodell was financially solvent, the children, brought up with Yankee thrift worked their way through school by taking summer jobs, waiting on tables, etc., and any money they had to borrow from their mother was paid back as soon as possible.

Mrs. Goodell helped her father and brother in their electrical business.

Although Mrs. Goodell couldn't get out with her children as she so wanted to, she was able to read to them, and they all became inveterate readers from the time they would gather around in a family circle following supper to hear their favorite stories and their favorite story teller.

There was no library in Wells River, the Goodell's hometown at that time, so Mrs. Goodell would send to Montpelier and St. Johnsbury for books. And she is still keeping up on children's literature in the interests of her 13 grandchildren.

Mrs. Goodell encouraged her children to take up sports, hunting, skiing, fishing, etc. Even though it meant the children went along without any winter overcoats to wear to church, in order to have some skis, and ran to church to keep warm. The children wanted skis—and they had them, with their mother's blessing.

Mrs. Goodell, who rides around the countryside, and flies to visit her families for a month at a time, keeps busy at home knitting and sewing for her grandchildren and in-laws, and reads. Although the heat of the summer bothers her, she is quite contented when there is a baseball game on the radio, and she forgets her discomfort. As she glances up from her easy chair beside the radio with a card table in front of her holding the latest book, sewing, knitting, a typewriter under the table, and crutches at her elbow, over to the book case where her children are pictured in a row, a soft glow suffuses her face and she remarks, "My children are my life—they have made it so much fuller and richer."

ROBERT H. WHITNEY, '22

Robert H. Whitney, '22, first vice-president of the Bridgeport-City Trust company, has been elected Vice President of the State Bank Division of the Connecticut Bankers association.

Mr. Whitney serving his second term as a member of the association's bank operations committee, previously has served on several other committees of the association. Since 1945 he has also been a member of the savings banks railroad investment committee of Connecticut, appointed by the Governor.

A native of Bridgeport, Mr. Whitney was graduated from Middlebury College in 1922. In 1923, he joined the Bridgeport Savings bank, where he was a teller until 1925. He then joined the Bridgeport Trust company as manager of its savings department and has successively served the Bridgeport-City Trust company as assistant secretary vice president, and treasurer and first vice president. He was made a director in 1952.

He is a director of the Sprague Meter company, the Locke Steel Chain company and the Connecticut Foundry company, Rocky Hill; treasurer and director of the Bridgeport Chamber of Commerce; trustee of the Employees' Tuberculosis Relief Society of Bridgeport; and trustee and treasurer of the Board of Trustees of the Bridgeport YMCA. He is also on the council of the Fairfield Historical society, is married, has two children and lives in Fairfield, Conn.

like all the others, make their greatest contributions to the work of the Board. Their assignments depend upon the professional and personal qualifications which they bring to the group but there is almost no limit to the influence and good ideas which they can supply. Their cordial welcome is real but coupled with the hope that their experience and abilities will help in the committee studies that never cease. The architect or builder goes to work on the problems of buildings and maintenance. The educator is assigned to Library or to Summer Schools. The new representative of the Alumnae is certain to be used in the plans for the present and future of the Women's College but she may also bring artistic ability or experience in administration of a large enterprise. Parents of college students have a valuable outlook on campus problems.

The possible influence of the individual trustee is not limited by the committee assignments if his new ideas are sound. As he talks with his new colleagues outside the hours of meetings, perhaps at the Barbecue in June or the football game at Homecoming in October, he finds himself being drawn into discussion of a general Middlebury problem or the affairs of another committee than his own. He may even be "co-opted" into an informal meeting of such a committee which finds that he has special knowledge or experience in a problem that must be solved quickly. He soon learns that the permanent Board of Trustees is not a group of philanthropists who have bought influence or privilege—rather it is a group of capable workers involved in principles beyond the power of money or family name. Sound ideas and methods of management are the only acceptable solutions.

As all the trustees have found by experience, a new trustee soon discovers that the modern college is an incredibly complex institution which runs smoothly and efficiently only if all its elements are governed by the ideals of teamwork. This complexity is also the challenge and sometimes the despair of the alumnus who comes to his new assignment with determination to be a useful representative of the electorate. He reads the college catalogue with a new attitude towards its statements of entrance requirements, the minimum and maximum limits for the curricular program of each student, and the titles of courses which include so few of his time in college. When the college Directory comes, he is amazed at its 30 pages of 1200 students plus 9 pages of strange names, offices, phone numbers and street addresses for the college staff. There is even a Faculty Handbook of 40 pages, apparently printed to save time for the staff in determining the correct procedure for everything from the system of faculty advisers to the official definition of plagiarism. To keep the trustees informed on the current ideas and activities of the students, the weekly Campus is sent regularly to each one. It also proves to be a useful guide in knowing what has been released to the public as news and what must still be regarded as "classified" when the trustees are talking with their friends in the Middlebury family.

First date year of appointment to the Board

§Term Trustee

The Alumni Trustee On The College Team

By DR. CHARLES J. LYON, '18, Alumni Trustee

DURING the early months of each year the Alumni of Middlebury elect by mail ballot a graduate who will serve for the next five years as a Trustee of the College. Thus there are always five Alumni Trustees working for Middlebury along with the Life Members and the Term Trustees, some of whom may have been sent originally to the Board as elected representatives of the Alumni. Beyond these simple facts of numbers and terms of service, it is doubtful if the intentions and the results of this system of Alumni Trustees are understood and appreciated by any alumnus who has not been honored by such an election.

There is a general feeling that each of the five "represents" the Alumni body in the management of the College. There may be some misunderstanding that the representatives serve as checkers on the efficient use of endowment funds, the intelligent administration of the curriculum and especially on the selection of freshmen. It seems to be a natural idea that a good word spoken by a trustee to the right person in Old Chapel will practically insure the admission of a respectable student, even though the applicant is personally unknown to him. The Alumni Trustee is really no more and no less effective in this field than any other trustee—none of them can do more than an ordinary alumnus and they all hesitate to speak or write to a Director of Admissions lest their efforts be misunderstood. In the same way no elected member of a Board of Trustees can or wants to dominate a policy of finances, staff personnel, curriculum or extracurricular activity. Like any loyal member of the Board, administration, faculty, service corps, student body or Associated Alumni, he wants to be a useful member of the College Team—and may it win all the time!

An Alumni Trustee is elected by a process that is both simple and democratic. In four years out of five, the special nominating committee of national officers for men selects two candidates from the geographical area in which the next vacancy is to occur. All Alumni vote by the special ballot sent to them in the Spring. In the fifth year the Alumnae vote by mail, choosing between two nominees from the entire country. Each year the vote is close, a tribute to the care taken by the nominating committees as they consider the possible candidates and present two who have shown particular interest in Middlebury and developed skills which might prove useful to the President and Board of Trustees.

When the new trustee first meets with the President and the full Board, he or she may easily be surprised at the cordial welcome as the group of twenty or more gather around a long, broad table in the old chapel room in Old Chapel. It is now a beautiful, paneled room with decorations that include life-size portraits of several past presidents, the oldest of whom might also be surprised to hear the cheerful men and women of all ages address their intimate associates by their first names or even by their college nicknames. There is no lack of respect for the special skills or professional eminence of the stalwarts around the conference table but neither is there any rivalry or conflict of interests. The theme of the long agenda of reports by officers and committees is always the welfare and progress of Middlebury.

The real nature and caliber of the Board members is revealed as they present their concise reports and debate the questions. The lawyers speak firmly when the issue or the recommendation has a legal aspect but they listen and accept the advice of the President or another educator when the point is a matter of educational method or policy. The bankers and experts in finance present their data in orderly tables which stand up to critical tests by the business men across the table. When one of these men brings in a recommendation for a new building or for changes in insurance or maintenance policies, their figures are tested by a pointed question or two on the financial side. There is keen interest and equal confidence in the reports on campus problems like library needs, housing or codes for the Women's College, athletic policies, summer schools and special aids for faculty housing.

With so many of these matters to be covered at each of the quarterly meetings of the entire Board, it follows that the thorough, detailed analysis of each is made in the committee meetings. They are scheduled before and after the regular meetings, often well into the night before and as frequently as once a month for the many problems of the Buildings and Grounds Committee or the routine items of the Prudential Committee.

It is in the rugged sessions of these many regular and special committees that the Alumni Trustees,

THE AUTHOR is an outstanding Alumni educator. Dr. Lyon has served on the faculties of Middlebury, Simmons, and Dartmouth Colleges. He is now a full professor and head of the Department of Botany at Dartmouth. Dr. Lyon is the author of numerous scientific articles. He was elected by the Alumni for a five year term as a Trustee in 1951.

Around The World In Five Months

By DR. STEPHEN A. FREEMAN, Vice President and Professor of French

"SALAAMALEICUM," "Peace be with you," said Malik Samand Khan to us, putting his hand to his forehead, and then to his heart. Mrs. Freeman and I stood in a courtyard in the village of Darra, in the Northwest Frontier Province of Pakistan, a few miles from the famous Khyber Pass, and at the foot of the Kohat Pass, in the midst of the Afridi Tribal Territory. This tall, gaunt old patriarch, with long white beard and hawk nose, keen, alert, and with much proud dignity, is all-powerful in this region. He can muster 50,000 tribesmen, each a dead shot with his own rifle. He is the owner-manager of the tribal gun factory here in Darra where beautiful weapons are turned out in the most primitive of shops. We watched while a workman bored a bar of steel for a rifle barrel, using a borer in which the tension is applied by a piece of rock hanging over a pulley. Another, squatting on the ground, bores a hole in the frame of a revolver with a bow drill, holding the piece with his toes. The finished products are stamped with the brand names, seals, and serial numbers of the best British manufacturers, counterfeiting the whole job to perfection. Outside in the bazaar, hundreds of fine rifles, revolvers, Sten guns and daggers are hung up for sale at a fifth of the usual cost. Malik told us proudly of the men he had sent to Kashmir to fight against India, and declared that if the United States would give him planes and the A-bomb, the Hindus wouldn't last a minute. Later, with him as our guest and safe-conduct, we drove through the Afridi Tribal Territory with its strange walled communal or family compounds and watch towers, to the top of the Kohat Pass, as we had done the day before in the Khyber Pass, and looked off into the country of Afghanistan.

How should a Middlebury professor celebrate his thirtieth anniversary at Middlebury College? Perhaps by proving to his own satisfaction that no place on this big earth is quite so fair as the village of Middlebury. To do this in thorough fashion required 58,000 miles of travel by air, rail, auto, boat, donkey, horse and camel back, during a five months' sabbatical adventure around the globe from September 1954 to January 1955. Although we had been in Europe three times within ten years on various missions for the United States Army or Middlebury College, this was the first time in thirteen years that we had been told we could do as we pleased for a semester. We rationalized that an exploration like this should be made while we were healthy enough to stand it and young enough to enjoy it.

We soon discovered that there is hardly anywhere on earth that one can escape from Middlebury College, even if he wished. Its alumni and its reputation are truly international. Nancy Rogers Belknap, '45, and her husband, Dave, met us as we stepped off the plane at Athens, twenty-four hours out of New York. We enjoyed the hospitality of their home, and several excursions with them, to the promontory of Sunion, or to Kanaki's Taverna where under the trees in Demosthenes' village, we were served the same fare that he knew.

In Istanbul we visited Professor and Mrs. Charles MacNeal, professors in Robert College, who showed us around the lovely campus above the Bosphorus, centering around Hamlin Hall; and told us the fascinating story of one of the founders and first President of Robert College, Cyrus Hamlin, President of Middlebury College from 1880 to 1885. Mrs. MacNeal is the daughter of Rev. Charles S. Riggs, honorary pastor of the Middlebury Congregational Church for a number of years, and Mrs. Riggs, a member of an old Middlebury family. While breakfasting with the MacNeals one morning, who should walk into the front hall but Harry Goddard Owen, Middlebury '23, now Dean of Rutgers University. I cannot say which of us was more astonished to see the other. Later in the week, we visited Martha Jean Potter, French major in the Class of '52, now teaching in a Girls' School or Lisesi, in Uskudar, across the Bosphorus.

And so it went during our whole trip. In Rangoon, Burma, we visited with Jim Cassedy, '41, and his wife, Barbara Snow Cassedy, Class of '46. Jim is Director of the Burma-American Institute in Rangoon, after several years directing a similar bi-national institute in Haiti, as described in the Middlebury NEWS LETTER of April, 1953. Jim and Barbara are doing a marvelous job winning friends for the United States among the Burmese, teaching English, running photography contests and dance classes, and disseminating American ideas in the most diplomatic way. The next week in Bangkok, Thailand, we had dinner with Roderick Hemphill, Class of '43. He is the head of a big silkworm farm of the Thai Silk Company in Northern Siam. Another day, to our astonishment, into the dining room of our Bangkok hotel, walked

It is difficult for a trustee to get acquainted with more than a few of the college staff unless he can visit the campus when college is in session. By tradition as well as function, it is divided into administration and faculty with the service officers (Supt. of Buildings and Grounds, etc.) becoming so important at times that they form a third significant section of the operating staff. The teamwork between and among them is a daily necessity and reality; the question is how to keep it smooth and rolling up high scores in student development.

Every student, past or present, knows that the faculty is the heart of the living College. Other members of the college community agree, from the President to the men who rake the leaves and sweep the rooms. At times the demands of the teachers seem to interfere with the full college experience but everyone realizes that the social life and extra-curricular events would be an empty shell if they existed at all without the core of daily assignments, lectures and laboratory studies. The professor not only sets the pace but also the tone and spirit of the campus. On Monday morning he must plan to lift the group morale and set the pitch for the week while he introduces new facts, theories and ideas. The standard of each course is also within his power to establish and he does it, whether he has the time to consider it or not. Given the minimum of equipment and a class with minds of college caliber, he can educate to the limit of his own mind which will grow as he grows in his profession.

The net result of all the teachers' efforts may not, however, be a simple sum or average. This is one of the surprising complexities of the campus college. It is not as simple as the bad apple in the barrel or the cream in the milk. It is too complex to state in a few words but the main component is the extra value from the teacher or department with the high standard of spirit plus scholarship, offset to an unpredictable degree by the instructor who leaves the students in doubt about the quality of their college education, the worth of their ideals and the prospects for justice in their daily lives and in the future. It is a matter of unconscious loyalty to the profession and to the college in which he serves. There are no easy tests for this type of loyalty nor is it easy to recognize or to foresee until the premiums have accrued in the form of uplifted students and a happy song in the campus air. If all our trustees could visit some classes and listen for the song without the band on a Saturday afternoon or the orchestra on Saturday night, they could learn faster about the academic life of the modern Middlebury.

The three ladies on the Board did just that last March and they liked what they saw and heard.

A faculty is just as complex in its collective function and responsibilities. It must plan a curriculum and keep it true to the objectives of the college and to the level of man's increasing knowledge. It must work out the delicate machinery of admissions, student programs, classroom instruction, examinations, graduate work and such disturbances as wars bring to the colleges. Of course they are worked out, under the pressure of hundreds or thousands of students each year, but only after weary hours of committee and faculty meetings.

It is in this area of educational policy and procedure that the teamwork between faculty and administration gets its greatest test and sometimes gives the college world the false impression that they don't like each other. The student may notice signs of disagreement and never learn before he graduates that the differences of opinion between the groups are largely trivial and superficial. They are based to a large extent on cases where one side or the other can point to instances in which a principle or policy was ignored without good cause. A Dean, for example, finds by accident that a professor has excused an absence by failing to report it to the office. Multiplied by repetition and not cleared up by discussion, such acts give the administrative officer the impression that the faculty members are often thoughtless and unreliable in academic procedures, no matter how well they may teach. He fails to notice that the incidents do not undermine the discipline of the College or lower the academic standards. The teachers usually know the students better than anyone else, as all Alumni will agree.

It is probably a more serious breach of teamwork that faculty members everywhere are often heard to mutter after mid-semester tests are graded, "How did that bird ever get in here? He isn't college material!" They forget that last year's Rhodes or Fulbright Scholar came in by the same admissions system which enrolled him in spite of acceptance by other colleges with more scholarship aids and other resources. Of even more significance for the admissions policy, they also forgot the recent graduate who went on scholastic probation in freshman year, found a stimulating major as a sophomore, scored straight A's in senior year and went on to win his Ph. D. at the age of twenty-five. That required insight and teamwork which is needed by every college every year. Middlebury seems to have it as the admin- [Continued on page 26] religion teaches the absence of material desire, people are generally indifferent to what we include in the term "a better standard of living." They cannot be appealed to on the basis of more food or more clothing; and life would be made no richer for them by the addition of a refrigerator or a television set.

It is absolutely essential that the United States, both the common people and the government, understand clearly and completely the hopes and desires of the peoples of other lands, not only in order to seize the opportunity for good leadership, but even to avoid the dangers with which the world situation is confronting us. The three basic wants mentioned above, not clearly understood by us, are generally playing into the hands of the Communists. They have covered Asia with "peace" slogans and have succeeded in persuading many that they want peace while the Western powers are arming for war.

In India, Indonesia, Vietnam, the white man represents domination by a foreign power. Imperialism, if not directly in the political sphere, at least indirectly in the commercial and cultural spheres, is one part of their definition of Western policy. The Communists have set themselves up very successfully as the Nationalist and Peace Party in many countries, and they have been largely successful in persuading the common people in South Vietnam. Democracy and Freedom mean little as abstractions; nothing at all to illiterates; the Communists use the same words more skillfully.

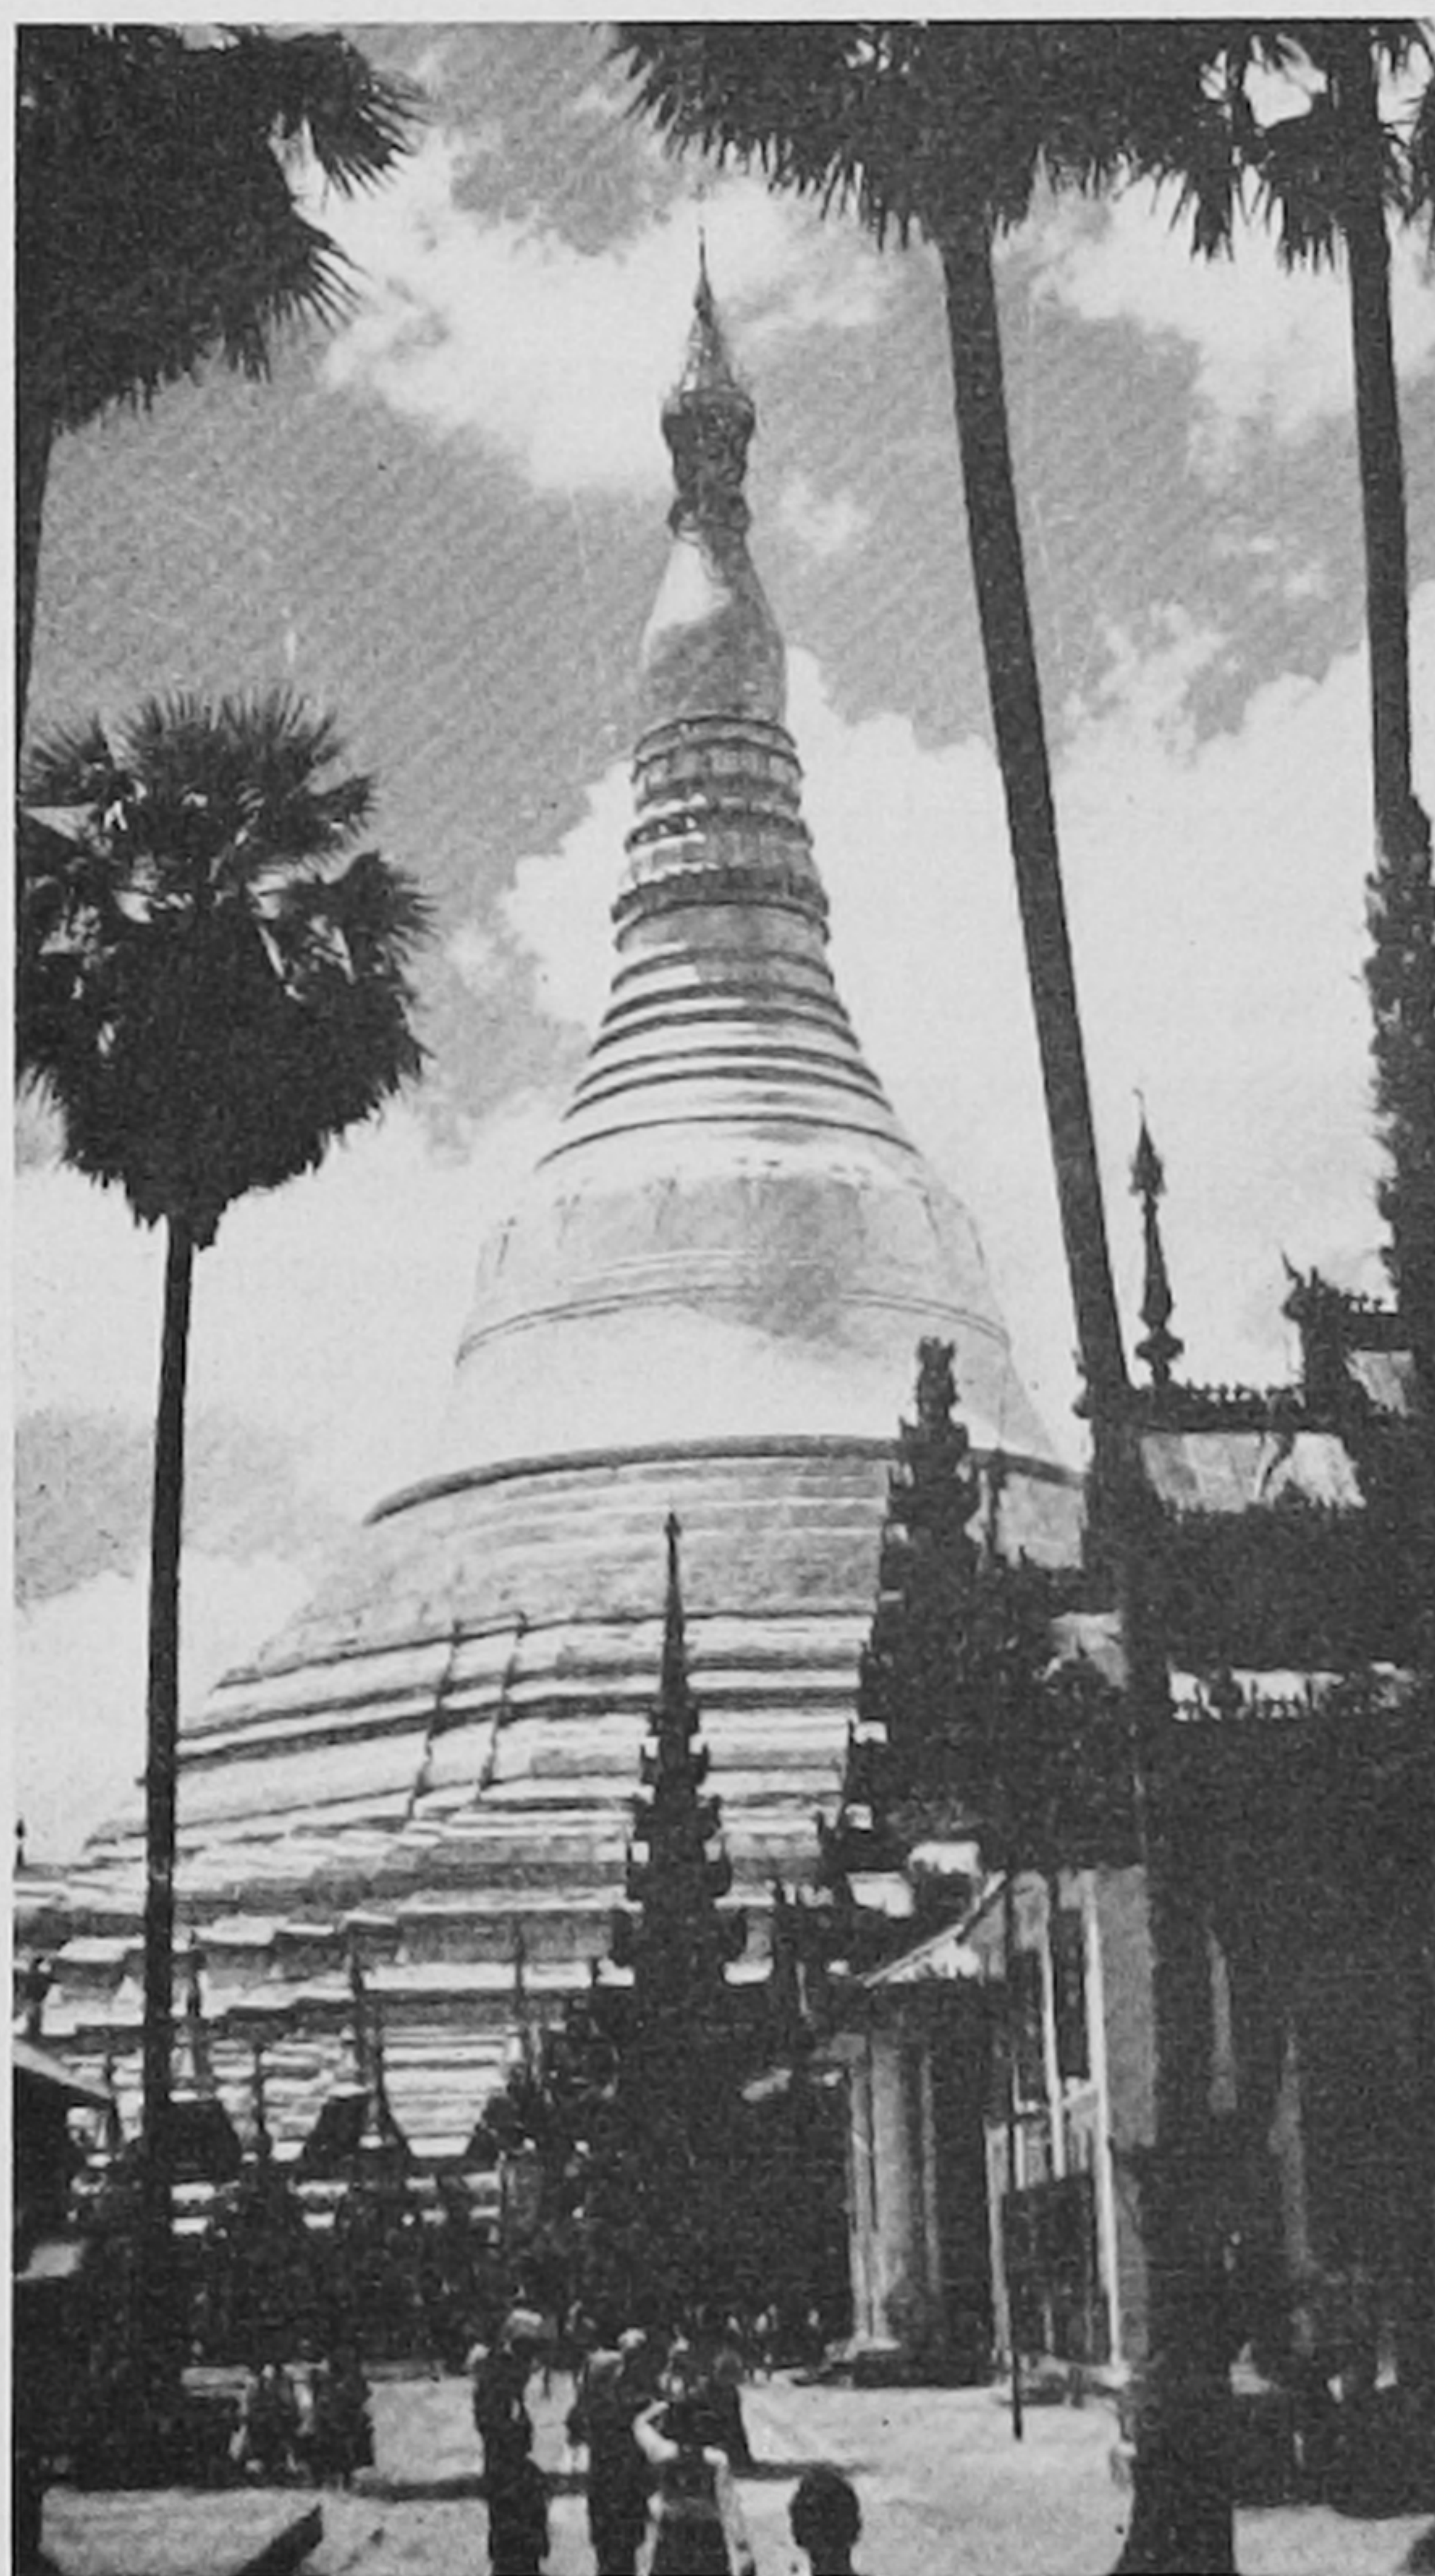

China and Russia are keenly aware of the desire for education and are inviting hundreds of students from every Asian country to Chinese or Russian universities, all expenses paid. Some of the best opportunities for advanced study in Asia are in Communist hands. I am reluctantly convinced that America is not doing everything that it could do to combat Communism in the world simply because we do not understand the basic desires, the thoughts and the motives, of the people we are trying to help. If we are to save them from Communism, if we wish to gain their friendship, we must understand them; we must meet them on a basis which corresponds to their thoughts, and approach them in terms which they can understand. As yet, we are not talking their language.

Perhaps I should conclude this account with a somewhat more systematic or factual statement of our itinerary, which was so nearly ideal that I hope it can be used as a model by others in search of similar adventure. Most of our travel was by air, planned by ourselves but on tickets secured from Pan American through American Express. We made all our own arrangements for hotels. After Athens, Delphi and Istanbul, we flew to Teheran where we found tourist movement considerably restricted by the impending anti-Communist purge. We succeeded, however, in getting a pass to go to Isfahan and I was even invited by the American pilot of the Iranian Airways plane to take the controls for forty-five minutes, over an 11,000 foot mountain range. My World War I "feel" had not entirely left me. The porcelain-tiled blue domes and minarets of Isfahan make it one of the most colorful cities in the world. Bagdad and Babylon were extremely hot and dusty. By contrast, the clean modern Mediterranean city of Beirut was very welcome. Biblos, Baalbek, Damascus, and Jericho, took us back into the oldest levels of civilization, being some of the most ancient centers of human habitation. A week in Jordan and old Jerusalem was barely enough time to follow some of the more familiar Bible stories, and to trace Jesus' steps from Bethany and Bethphage, over the Mount of Olives to the Golden Gate of Jerusalem and the Via Dolorosa.

From Cairo, Gizeh, and Sak-kara, we took the train up the Nile to Luxor, Karnak and the Valley of the Kings. Returning then to Jerusalem, we walked with our baggage through the Mandelbaum Gate into Israel across No Man's Land; helped to celebrate the Jewish New Years and spent a day in Galilee, Nazareth, and at Lake Tiberius. Because of the Arab-Israel War, we were forced to fly all the way back [Continued on page 26]

Jeanne Badeau Barnet, Class of '52, and her husband, Doak Barnet, regularly stationed in Hong Kong and doing special research in history. Walking down the Ginza in Tokyo, I recognized a familiar face as Miss Jane Rittenhouse, a graduate of the Middlebury French School in 1947. The hostess on a Pan-American trans-ocean plane introduced herself as a former student in one of the summer schools. Everywhere we met people who knew of Middlebury, or who had friends who had studied here.

We had many purposes in mind in making this trip. It was not only for relaxation or touristic enjoyment. As a language teacher, I wanted to learn something about the state of language study, both English and the foreign languages, in other parts of the world. As American citizens, interested in international affairs, we wanted to see for ourselves at first hand some of the elements of the international situation, and the attitude of other countries toward America and Americans. For five months, we talked with hundreds of people of high and low estate—government officers, teachers, taxi drivers, hotel clerks and beggars—in most of what we are tempted to call the "sore spots of the earth." We watched the sentinels on both sides of no man's land in Jordan and in Israel. We drove into the tribal territory of Northern Pakistan, through the Khyber Pass to the border of Afghanistan, and we talked with Moslems and Hindus in the Vale of Kashmir. We spent a week in Saigon and drove about the back country of South Vietnam with an American Army officer. We were able to catch more than fleeting glimpses of the State of Johore in Malaya; of Hong Kong on the border of Red China; of Indonesia in its contradictory aspects of Djakarta and Bali. We watched French colonial policy at work on the Island of Tahiti.

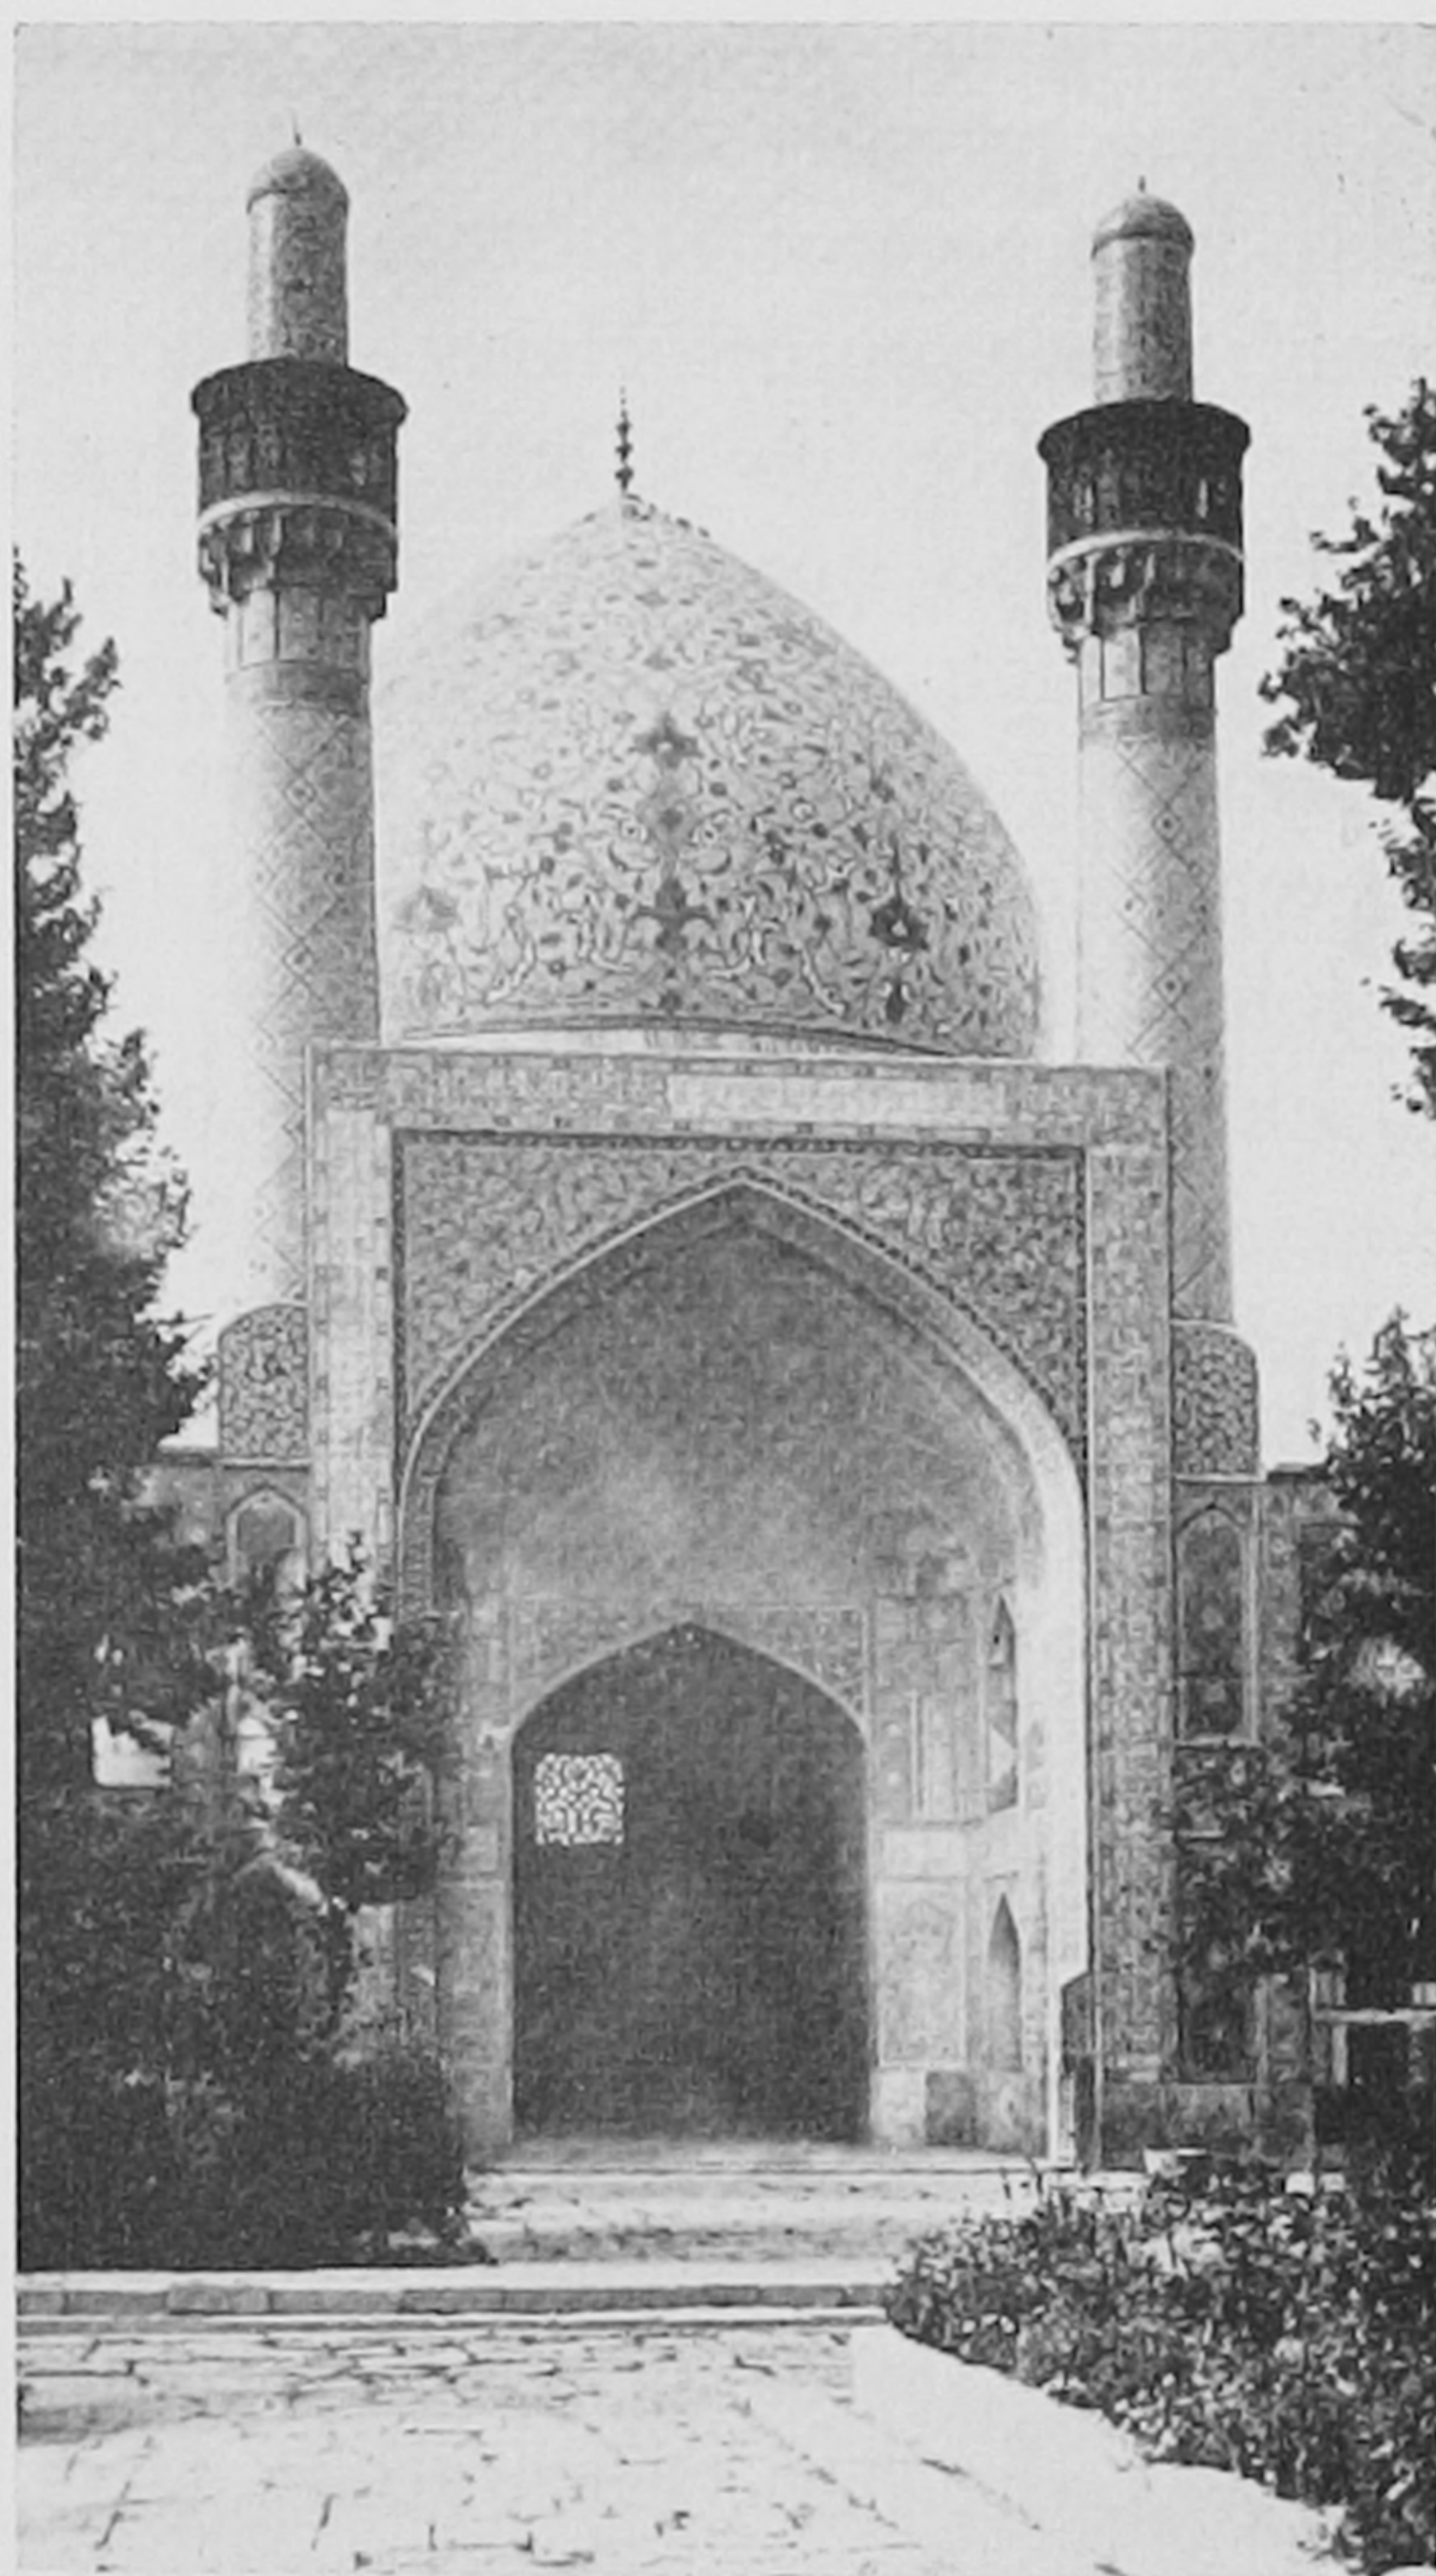

No two places were alike, but in all of them we tried to look beyond the pronouncements of the governments and the ambitions of the rulers, in order to see as best we could what the common people of these countries want, what lies nearest to the heart of the man in the street. I think I can generalize with some fair accuracy, that he wants three things. The first is peace. This means to him a chance to work, the right to earn his daily bread, time to work out his own and his nation's problems unmolested by foreign bombers or by conscription into the army. He is desperately afraid a war will break out between the United States and Russia, knowing that it will engulf him, and he will suffer as much as anyone, perhaps more.

Secondly, these people are fanatically desirous of self-determination. They want self-government, even if they do it badly, and in some cases they admit that they do. There is a spirit of independence abroad in the world; and the days of imperialism and colonialism are over. In many cases, the spirit of local independence is superior to the spirit of nationalism; and when local interests are at variance, national unity is difficult, as in Pakistan or Indonesia. They do not want to be Americanized or Russianized. Economic help is gratefully received from both sides, but if any strings are attached or if they sense any interference in their affairs, they say, "No thanks, we'd rather be let alone."

Third, the common man, around the world, wants an education, for himself and for his children. Illiteracy is still very widespread and yielding only slowly to government efforts. Yet these peoples realize that education is the basis of all progress, and it is receiving major attention. Educational theories, programs, reforms in method, budgets for school buildings, normal schools for training teachers, and so forth, are the subject of constant discussion in the press.

These three things—peace, self-determination and an education—are the principal desires of common man around the world as we saw him. The desire for a better standard of living would come in as a poor fourth, and is generally considered as an accessory or a result of peace and an education. In most countries of Asia, especially in the Buddhist and Hindu countries, where their nor will it attempt to dissuade freshmen from joining a fraternity. The purpose of the Club is not to alter drastically the social structure of undergraduate life but to provide a larger basis of opportunity. The Administration has recently reaffirmed Middlebury's aims as a liberal arts college by stating that "a liberal arts education in a democratic society is based upon the concept of the dignity and worth of every individual as a human personality." The founding of the Atwater Club this year is positive evidence of Middlebury's efforts to fulfill her obligations to every man on this campus.

WITH OUR FACULTY

THE ALUMNI TRUSTEE
ON THE COLLEGE TEAM

istration and faculty combine their efforts to attract and develop capable students and a generous proportion of scholars.

The one man who understands and directs all these and the many other complexities of the greater Middlebury is President Stratton, the Captain of the Team. He has held the big, tough job for over ten years. The trustees are the ones who know how much he has done and how well he has utilized the limited resources of Middlebury during the difficult post-war years. He is cheerfully carrying more work and more kinds of jobs than one man should. Most of them are done without publicity or opportunity for the campus college to know the details. As an experienced teacher, he is sympathetic to the daily work and problems of the teaching staff. Through his well timed efforts the endowment has been enlarged and the physical plant developed as rapidly as funds permit, with more plans ready for the future and the prospects reasonably bright. The salaries and number of the staff have been greatly increased with the President still pressing for more for the teachers as inflation forces all his budgets higher.

In the face of increasing competition for the good students who can afford a college education, President Stratton and his assistants have maintained a normal enrollment of boys and girls with the same Middlebury ideals that we have had for decades in a liberal arts college no longer dominated by training for teaching, law, medicine and the ministry. Its curriculum and classroom methods are geared to the development of future citizens in industry, business and homes, with the pre-professional education still provided for and certainly not injured by emphasis upon a thorough knowledge of some one field plus a balanced program of courses. A Middlebury degree is always worth more than it cost the owner.

In connection with the search for each year's quota of boys and girls who will profit by this Middlebury education, an Alumni committee has been thinking of ways by which more than five alumni can be added to the Middlebury team. Many are now helping through the Alumni Fund but an even closer link with the campus could be maintained if the Alumni could help select the new students. A personal interview with each applicant is very important in appraising qualities not recorded by such items as grades in secondary school, scores on aptitude tests and a list of school activities. It is often difficult for the admissions officers to meet everyone but no applicant lives far from an alumnus. A second rating by a Middlebury man or woman would improve the basis for selection in any case. A few alumni have helped in this way with applicants outside New England. If you are ever asked to be an interviewer, you should welcome the chance to renew your Middlebury ties and be helpful in an important work. You will be another alumnus on the Middlebury Team.

to Rome, in order to get a plane across the Middle East to Pakistan. In Karachi, Ambassador Hildreth, whose daughter and niece have been Middlebury students, had generously left instructions that we be entertained at the Embassy, although he and his family had all returned to Maine for the marriage of their daughter. After a few days in Lahore, the cultural capital of Pakistan, we pushed on to Peshawar in the Northwest Frontier Province, at the foot of the Khyber Pass. At a meeting of the Rotary Club of Peshawar, I was asked to speak at a special Ladies' Night Meeting and told them of Middlebury, a typical small college and small village of the United States.

We spent six weeks in a very thorough visit of India, all around the perimeter and crisscrossing the interior from the Vale of Kashmir, and Darjeeling on the slopes of Kanchenjunga on the north; Bombay, Bangalore, the Caves of Ellora and Ajanta, and Madras in the center, to Mysore in the south, climaxing it with a fascinating week in Ceylon.

Leaving Burma and Thailand behind us, we flew across Indo-China, spent five days in Hong Kong and then flew north again over Formosa to Japan, where for an entrancing week we lived in an ancient Japanese inn in Kyoto, dressing, eating and sleeping in real Japanese fashion. We returned south by way of Manila to Saigon. Five days in this city, which has been called the "Hell Hole of the East," gave us some insight into the tensions which center here and which broke out shortly after we left.

We stopped briefly in Singapore and then changing planes in Djakarta, we found ourselves for a week in the deservedly famous island of Bali. The lush tropical vegetation and the colorful native life, the dancers and the artisans, were a continual delight. We crossed Australia in a long jump, stopping only briefly at Darwin and Sidney, and then over the South Pacific to the Fiji Islands.

We had saved the month of January for a real rest before returning to work, and we spent two weeks of it on the beautiful south coast of Viti Levu. Then a Qantas flying boat, making one trip every two weeks, took us via British Samoa and the Cook Islands to Tahiti in the French Society Islands, another idyllic spot for ten days of complete rest. The volcanic island of Moorea, twelve miles off the Tahitian Coast, is the most beautiful island I think we have ever seen. We stayed there until the last moment possible, then made a quick trip back across the Pacific via the Fijis, Canton Island, a few days in Hawaii, Los Angeles and home.

We arrived in Middlebury on Sunday evening, January 30, and I stood before an eight o'clock class on Monday morning, January 31. Every moment of our semester's sabbatical had been filled to overflowing.
